Mr. Coolidge Smiles

—By Arthur Brisbane—

THREE THINGS interest human beings now, interested them ten thousand years ago, will interest them 1,000,000 years hence —WEATHER, MONEY AND AMUSEMENT.

Of the three there are many kinds. In winter we complain of cold. In spring we complain of summer's delay. Real summer comes and we complain.

Reading a few pages in Jean's book of astronomical physics would comfort us.

Inside the sun the temperature is 50,000,000 degrees centigrade, above. A few miles above our heads, outside of the atmosphere and the ether, there is just absolute zero, 217 degrees centigrade, below.

And miraculously, our blood is kept at 98 degrees at the equator or at the North Pole. Be grateful for our earth-hot house.

There are many kinds of money, honest and dishonest, made and lost by gambling, or accumulated by hard work.

Of the nation, ninety billion dollar annual income, at least eighty billion represent fairly honest money. Not bad for our kind of civilization.

The history of mankind can be written in a history of his innumerable amusements. Some watch prize fights, some play miniature golf, a few contemplate the starry heavens.

Mr. Spear, of New York Standard Oil, asking permission to combine with the Vacuum Oil Co., says his company wants "a nation-wide company engaged in the distribution of all petroleum products."

If the government prevents it, the government is silly. It allows the energetic and brilliant Sir Henri Deterding, head of the Dutch-British "Shell" Co., to have "a nation-wide distribution of all petroleum products." No American concern equals the foreign "Shell" Company as a nation-wide distributor. More humane is Mr. Deterding and his energetic associates.

But, why not allow an American concern, even if it is called "Standard Oil," to do what a foreign company is allowed to do?

In hot weather be careful, beware of sunstroke, heat, heat exhaustion.

That warning was sent from Washington by Surgeon General Cumming of the public health service on Monday. Yesterday 34 nurses were poisoned in New York's Farker hospital, presumably, ptomaines in tainted meat.

Keep your hat on in sunshine. Artific rays are bad for your brain. Protect your spinal cord. Don't expose it to hot sunlight too long at a time.

Drink much cool, not iced, water.

It will please Calvin Coolidge's millions of admirers to know that regardless of weather he always wakes up smiling. He inherited and served through the period of gigantic prosperity, caused by the pouring out of war billions. Then he handed the job to Mr. Hoover.

And, now for writing 150 words a day, telling Mr. Hoover to keep cheerful and the people to support him, Mr. Coolidge is paid $150,000 a year, at least, twice what the people pay to Mr. Hoover to worry. What wise words:

"I do not choose."

Egypt, "oldest civilization in the world" except perhaps Mesopotamia, acts through the anger of the mob just as savage natir s act.

Ingeniously rioters seek out leaks in gas mains, set fire to the leaks and blow up mains, destroy many houses.

The British stand such nonsense well. If Egyptians insist on burning Egyptians what can you do?

But when the fighting spreads to the Suez Canal, that is something else. Britain will not ignore a request for reinforcements there.

A committee of congressmen went to inspect "dangerous Reds" in the hot sunshine at their summer camp.

The congressmen looked wise, the Communists dressed in "shorts," according to reporters, yelled "murderers! capitalists!" at the committee, which contained no murderer and no capitalist of any importance.

If "Reds" could get rid of the "capitalists" that worried Karl Marx, how would they feel? There would be no more bath tubs, automobiles, "movies," ready-made "shorts," or good pay rolls.

All those things are the products of "capitalists."

With the exception of Capt. Gallivan, 34 policemen at Station 4, Lagrange st., will be transferred to other stations immediately, according to a report from a reliable source at police headquarters today.

The transfers, it was said, would be made to "break up the Beano" Green case.

These changes to be promulgated in a general order tonight, will constitute one of the biggest shakeups in the history of the Boston police department.

The "Beano" Green case, which attracted Commissioner Hultman's spotlight on Division 4, is before the Supreme Court, with David J. Breen and James Harmon, owners of the building at 358-358A Tremont st., seeking an injunction to prevent further police liquor raids there.

2 MEN SHOT IN BOAT CHASE BY COAST GUARDS

Failed to Halt at Command of Rum Hunters, Is Official Report

New Bedford, July 23 — Two members of the crew of the speedboat Marge were wounded by gunfire from two coast guard boats in a chase off No Man's Land today.

The wounded, Daniel Conway and Fred Stone, both of New Bedford, with Skipper Charles Kingston, were taken to Woods Hole where Coast Guard officers admitted responsibility for the shooting aboard their craft.

The speedboat is said to be owned by T. A. Jackman of Bridgeport, Conn. The Coast Guard craft in the chase were the patrol boats 223 and 224.

According to Coast Guard officials the party was in contraband of Boatswain's Mate A. H. Calder and the 223 in charge of Norman B. McLelland.

The official account of the shooting said the patrol boats picked up the Marge off No Man's Land, and when she failed to halt, pursued for several miles.

Eventually the patrol boats opened fire with machine guns, and the Marge, two of her crew wounded, stopped.

The wounded men were given medical treatment at Woods Hole

RUDY, UNKISSED AND UNSUNG, IS IN HUB

Crooner Slips Into Town in a Lavish Auto; Gets a Kick Out of His "Disguise"

Rudy Vallee, radio crooner extraordinary, motored to Boston from his Westbrook, Me., home today and his reception here included not so much as a single cheer or kiss.

Back from four days of being feted at his home town, Rudy rejoined—with his left hand—on the Hotel Kenmore guest card, shook hands with Lee Whitney, hotel manager, with Ed Sullivan, his manager and manager of the national broadcasting chain, and failed to get a second glance from any one of several hundred persons in the lobby.

Rudy didn't say a word. Perhaps that was pulled down over his face, so he could avoid recognition. Evidently the ruse was successful because Rudy fortified had tired him a bit.

Whitney didn't recognize him until Rudy gave him the Sigma Alpha grip. This was one of several grips, bags and other articles of luggage that accompanied the crooner in his car.

Before he left the lobby to go to his room for a shower, two small girls were told who he was and approached him with the idea of shaking hands, but he didn't know

Los Angeles, Cal., July 23 (INS)—Dolores Del Rio, motion picture star, was charged in a divorce answer today with causing the marital rift between Gunther R. Lessing, widely known attorney, and his wife.

Miss Del Rio, a former client whom he is now suing for legal services, had influenced his wife against him, the lawyer's amended answer to his wife's complaint alleges.

GUNMEN KILL MAYOR'S FOE

Detroit, July 23 — Gerald E. "Jerry" Buckley, announcer for radio station WMBC, and son of a millionaire land owner, was shot and killed by three men in the lobby of the La Salle Hotel at 1:30 a. m. today.

Buckley, a former attorney for the Ford Motor Co., had taken an active part in the campaign to recall Mayor Charles Bowles. His last radio announcement was a statement that the mayor had been recalled in yesterday's election. Buckley had been an opponent of the mayor and it is declared he was "put on the spot" because of this.

Governor Fred W. Green ordered every state trooper in the vicinity of Detroit to participate in the hunt for the slayers who fled after the shooting.

"If necessary," Governor Green said, "I will call out the State militia to solve the slaying."

BIG ITALIAN AREA LAID IN RUIN; HUNDREDS INJURED IN PANIC

Naples, July 23—The number of deaths in a terror-striking earthquake which ravaged southern Italy early this morning had reached 251 this afternoon, with more than twice that number injured.

These figures were based upon the reports of provincial prefects flowing into the Ministry of the Interior, of which Premier Mussolini is head.

The reports stated that thousands of houses had been either demolished or wrecked to the point where they will have to be pulled down. These include rich old palaces, churches and provincial cottages alike.

The terror of the quakes was so sharp and frightful at times that the number of deaths from sheer fright is regarded as certain, but cannot be estimated at the present time.

Because of the shattering of communication and the difficulty of reaching victims imprisoned in the debris an accurate count of the dead and injured still was unavailable.

At least a hundred of the injured are in a serious condition.

Three violent shocks were felt shortly after 6 o'clock this morning and a lesser shock added to the horror at 8:35 a. m.

The hardest hit, unconfirmed reports stating that there were 100 deaths there alone.

Everywhere in the stricken region firemen, soldiers, militiamen and civilian volunteers dug into the ruins in frenzied efforts to discover whether there were victims buried there. Damaged walls and roofs were bolstered up, but many houses must be pulled down, so utterly useless are they and such a menace.

The towns most seriously affected by the earthquake as reported authoritatively were as follows:

Melfi, 160 dead; Bionero, 20 dead, 50 injured; Rapollo, 20 dead, 30 injured; San Sossio Baronia, 14 dead, 100 injured; Barile, 11 dead, 40 injured.

In addition to these casualties there were scattered deaths in various surrounding towns.

San Sossio Baronia was destroyed by the quake.

The mayor of Villanova Del Battista and his entire family were killed.

PEOPLE IN PANIC

The violence of the three shocks —Grade 7 on the Mercalli scale— was indicated by the calculations of seismographers that if it had reached Grade 10 on the same scale the whole city of Naples would have been destroyed.

Up to 6 p. m. the United States consulate had had no notice of any American victims in Naples or any of the nearby resorts on the famous bay.

At Sorrento, which is a popular stopping place of American tourists, two natives were killed by a cavein. Five deaths were reported in the nearby countryside.

Other reports said casualties were recorded in Avellino and Fortenza.

The tremors shook buildings and

SEIZE STOCK SALESMAN AS FUGITIVE

Thomas W. Savage, a stock salesman of New York city, was arrested in a Boston hotel today as a fugitive from justice, charged with the larceny of $3000 through the illegal sale of bad securities to Clement S. Bate of Niagara Falls.

Savage, arrested by Inspectors Morrison and Teaserero, is said to be employed by a Wall st. brokerage house. New York authorities were notified of his arrest.

A high official of an old Massachusetts corporation will be one of the first to be prosecuted in the investigation into recent stock sales and violations of the "blue sky" law, it was decided today by Atty.-Gen. Joseph E. Warner.

It was also announced by Asst.-Atty.-Gen. Louis H. Sawyer, in charge of the inquiry, that the attorney general's office would seek the indictments in the stock cases instead of leaving the presentation of the evidence to the district attorneys.

The broker's license of Joseph F. Cooper of Elm Hill pk., Roxbury, was suspended today by Commissioner John C. Hull of the State Securities Division on complaint of Mrs. Selia Wieder of 561 Warren ave., South End.

In her complaint, Mrs. Selia alleged Cooper, in September, 1928, sold her 150 shares of Chain Store stock for $750, after misrepresenting the stock and its revenue.

Sawyer said the first indictments would be asked from the August grand jury in Suffolk county. True bills will also be sought against two persons reputed to have sold

City Gives Work to 30 Additional Men

Under a new system which went into effect in the public works department today 30 additional men will be afforded permanent employment on city work, Mayor Curley announced. By giving workmen time off instead of paying them for overtime the funds saved can be used to pay salaries of additional men. After a conference with the mayor, Commissioner Joseph Rourke of the public works department ordered that the new plan be adopted at once.

TROOPERS HUNT DETROIT RADIO ANNOUNCER'S SLAYERS

KILLED AFTER RECALL OF MAYOR

Gov. Green May Call Out the National Guards to Get Buckley's Murderers city was summoned and radio cruising patrol cars are guarding every outlet to Detroit.

$5000 REWARD POSTED

A reward of $5000 for the arrest and conviction of the killers and those who instigated it was posted today by the city council.

Coming less than a week after the carnival of underworld murders, in which eleven gangsters were slain in a 12-day period, the shooting of the WMBC radio announcer caused a tremendous sensation.

Paul Buckley, former assistant prosecutor of Wayne County and brother of the slain man, said Gerald had been threatened because of his activities in favor of the recall.

"There is no doubt but Jerry's activities in the recall movement and the turn in the recall election was the sole reason for the shooting," he said.

Paul said Gerald had told him he had been threatened by letter and by telephone.

Gerald was sitting reading a newspaper in the lobby of the hotel when three men entered, approached him from behind and fired 11 bullets into his body at close range. Six bullets entered the back of his head, all within an area of four inches. He was shot in the neck, arm, leg and foot.

ONE SUSPECT SEIZED.

One suspect was arrested in connection with the slaying when he was found in an elevator of the hotel shortly after the shooting. He was registered as Angelo Livecchi and is held for investigation. The police said he was wanted in Rochester, N. Y., where he jumped bond of $10,00 while awaiting trial on a charge of robbery.

The killing of Buckley recalled a speech he made over station WMBC soon after the killing of Alfred Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter. Buckley bitterly assailed gangsters, declaring that when they ceased to kill each other and turned their guns on the citizens "something must be done and something will be done."

Buckley, who was 37 years old, had been announcing over Station WMBC for the last two weeks. He had scored the underworld by his bitter attacks on gambling.

He was said to have been a witness of the slaying of George Colfax and William Cannon, Chicago gangsters, who were shot at the side entrance of the LaSalle hotel, July 3. Buckley was said to have seen the shooting from a window of the hotel. Station WMBC is located in the hotel, and Buckley lived there.

Buckley was a graduate of St. Mary's College, St. Mary's, Kan., and Detroit College of Law.

As police delved into the murder victim's life, they uncovered many leads. He was a known "confidante" of gamblers and underworld leaders. He had been accused of extortion several times, but the charges were believed to be without foundation, police said.

ESTRANGED FROM WIFE.

Buckley had been separated from his wife and 12-year-old son, and, according to police, maintained an expensive apartment for a myatress. "Miss O'Hara," who was with him until a short time before the shooting.

The election day vote, by which Buckley had fought, placed Mayor Charles Bowles in the role of the first executive of a major American city to be recalled from office. The majority for recall was 30,956 out of 310,770 votes cast. The vote was for the recall, 120,863, against the recall 89,907.

The mayor returned from the Kentucky Derby last May to find his police commissioner, Harold H. Emmons, had authorized sweeping raids on race handbook agencies. Bowles discharged Emmons.

That precipitated the recall movement with charges that he had "tolerated lawlessness" and "fired Emmons for enforcing the law."

STEEL MERGER VOTES ILLEGAL, IS CHARGE

Eaton Interests Introduce the Wills of Myron T. Herrick and Others at Trial

Youngstown, O., July 23 (AP) —The fight of attorneys for the Cyrus S. Eaton interests to prove illegal the merger of Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. with Bethlehem Steel Corp. today narrowed down to attack on the stock voted to ratify the merger by fiduciaries of estates and incompetents.

In Common Pleas court the Eaton attorneys introduced into evidence documents and other papers representing 57,812 shares, which they contend were illegally voted at the stockholders' meeting April 8, this year. The merger carried by 58,071 shares.

HERRICK HELD 5193

Among the exhibits was the will of the late Myron T. Herrick, former Ambassador to France, involving 5193 shares.

B. A. Bingham, of Cleveland, deputy clerk of probate court, testified that on March 21 the court ordered partial distribution of the estate and transferred the Youngstown Company stock to Parmely Herrick.

OTHER WILLS PRODUCED.

Other wills brought by Bingham, and for which he testified the probate court issued no orders providing for the voting, sale or distribution of the stock involved, are those of Henry S. Pickands, 12,600 shares; John Wolf, 1120 shares; John E. Bennington, 600 shares; John Stanbaugh, 6968 shares; John Stanbaugh, Jr., 1565 shares; William F. Fair, 38 shares; E. L. Ford, 21,666 shares.

Stock amounting to 4650 shares voted by the guardians of Samuel Mather and Catherine Stone Mather, also was attacked on the ground a court order was needed before it could be voted.

Besides these, the Eaton attorneys told the court, they will attack "hundreds of thousands" of other shares voted.

GARRETT MISSING 31 DAYS!

RUDY SLIPS INTO HUB, UNSUNG

about it, and walked to the elevator without seeing them.

BUSY WEEK AHEAD

Rudy begins his one-week New England tour with his orchestra tonight, opening at Marlboro. Tomorrow night he will be at Hampton Beach, N. H., Friday night at Old Orchard, Me., Saturday at Bournehurst on Buzzards Bay, Sunday at New Haven, Monday night at Nuttings on the Charles, Tuesday at Providence and Wednesday night at Springfield.

Monday at the Kenmore he will be the guest of honor at a luncheon of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon society. Gov. Allen, Mayor Curley and Atty. Gen. Warner have been invited.

After he had been refreshed by a shower, the crooner received a small army of newspaper folk, who plied him with questions. Asked if he was disappointed in his reception he said he was not, that he was used to being unrecognized.

A COUNTRY BOY

"I don't look like a singer," he said. "I got a great kick out of driving up to the hotel (in his new robin's egg blue roadster) and being told by the doorman that I'd have to move on because there was a big singer coming and a crowd might collect."

Rudy said he liked Boston but he wouldn't like to live here because the streets are too narrow. He likes New York, but he would not want his permanent home there because he likes the country.

He doesn't like it when people refer to him as a one-type personality, he said.

"I'm several types. I can be gay or villainous, according to the song I'm singing."

DESIGNS ON OPERA

Then he astounded his listeners with the announcement that some day he would "take the good tunes" out of several operas and make a "real dance tune out of them."

"We'll take a bar here and bar there and we'll have a hit," he said.

Rudy wants a good arranger and he knows a man in England who excels on medleys and may get him to co-operate in the work. He said he liked Victor Herbert's music very much better than the operas and symphonies. Once, he said, he took a course in the appreciation of music.

"It left me cold," he admitted.

PACT MODIFIES PROGRAM ON CRUISERS

Five Ships Authorized in 1929 Are Out'awed by New Agreement

By FULTON LEWIS
Universal Service

Washington, July 23 — Complete reorganization of the navy's cruiser building program will be necessary under the terms of the new naval treaty, it was made known today.

Five of the 10,000 ton cruisers authorized for building in the cruiser program of 1929 must be eliminated. A large proportion of the remainder must be delayed in building, the last three now to be laid down until 1933, 1934, and 1935.

Upon Congress will fall the work of this reorganization, since that body stipulated the exact schedule of building under the 1929 cruiser building program. Under that act it was specified that five cruisers be built each year for three years, making 15 in all.

WHAT TREATY ALLOWS

Recommendation of the navy as to the new construction plans will probably come later in the summer.

Under the terms of the London treaty the United States may have 18 10,000 ton cruisers with eight-inch guns and 20 smaller cruisers with six-inch guns, or she may have 15 of the eight-inch type and 26 of the six-inch. There is little question, however, but that the former arrangement will be accepted.

Of the 18 large cruisers, the navy now has in commission five of eight vessels authorized under the building program, of 1924, namely the U. S. S. Chester, Houston, Salt Lake City, Pensacola, and Northampton. The remaining three of this class, the Augusta, Louisville and the Chicago, are nearing completion. This work will not be disturbed.

FIVE KEELS LAID

This will give the navy eight 10,000 ton cruisers, leaving 10 to be built. Thus, with 15 authorized in the program of 1929, five must be stricken from the new group.

Of this group, the keels of five ships have already been laid down, namely the New Orleans, Portland, Astoria, Indianapolis, and Minneapolis.

This would completely clear up the eight ships of the 1924 program, and the first five of the 1929 program, leaving five to be constructed under the terms of the treaty. It is the rescheduling of the building of this five to comply with the treaty terms, that the navy must now undertake.

Chicago, July 23—Mrs. Jacob Franks of Chicago, widow of the Chicago capitalist and mother of Bobby Franks, victim of the Loeb - Leopold murder, attended the ceremonies attached to the laying of the corner stone at a memorial to her slain son.

Mrs. Franks

The memorial is in the form of a club house for boys and is being erected on the West Side of Chicago. Jacob Franks, father of the murdered boy, who died in 1928, provided in his will that $100,000 be expended by trustees for a personal memorial to his son.

The will read:

"The type of memorial which I desire shall be one that will give pleasure, help and encouragement to boys as my son in his lifetime gave sympathy, consideration and encouragement to his playmates."

"It" Girl has Race For Fan Mail Honors

Hollywood, July 23—Clara Bow has "It," but it doesn't seem to help her in holding her lead in fan mail. For, according to latest reports, Ruth Chatterton, dramatic actress of the stage and screen, has now surpassed the Brooklyn "redhead" both in fan mail and as a box office attraction.

He will pilot another "mystery ship," of the same type as the single-motored craft which he piloted to victory over a 10-mile course in a free-for-all event last year. During that race he averaged 194.89 miles an hour and on one lap he pushed his plane up to 220.8 miles an hour.

Douglas Davis

Davis also captured the Thompson trophy race at last year's air derby. Following the meet, he sent his "mystery ship," hurtling through the air between New York and Atlanta, setting a record of one hour and a half for the approximate distance of 800 miles between the cities.

and then all three were placed under arrest. The charge against them was not announced.

Later the three men were released by Commander Frederick H. Nichols of the coastguard base at Woods Hole, who announced the authorities would proceed against the owner of the Marge.

It was understood action would be taken because the speedboat was running without lights.

Questioned about the wounding of the two men, Commander Nichols said it was unfortunate the boat did not stop when ordered.

According to Stone, one of the wounded men, he was a passenger on the Marge, which he said was bound from Gloucester to New Bedford for repairs.

He said the patrol boat 2378 approached as they were leaving the Bourne end of the Cape Cod Canal, flashed a light and without warning opened fire with her machine gun.

Detroit Gangster Victim Was 'Robin Hood' to Poor

Detroit, July 23 (INS)—The murder of Gerald ("Jerry") Buckley, radio announcer, here today, was a blow to the poor of the city. Wealthy in his own right, he is known to have given away thousands of dollars yearly.

He obtained positions for jobless men and on many occasions furnished food and clothing to the poor. He was an idealist, his friends say, who sincerely crusaded for the down-trodden.

Probably Buckley's greatest work of philantrophy was his Christmas campaign last year. He turned over his broadcasting station to solicit baskets of food, clothes and money. Newspapers and public officials praised him for his efforts in this direction.

A high official today, however, referred to Buckley as a "Robin Hood." Charges have been made that he was friendly with certain underworld elements.

GARRETT CHASE JUST A BUBBLE

The very latest in Garrett clues led police a merry chase in Plymouth County this afternoon and—like all the rest—exploded with a sharp, decisive "Pop!"

A report from Suffolk Court Officer Patrick Melia that he had chased Oliver B. Jarrett, fugitive former liquor raider, in an automobile for 10 miles through Kingston and Plymouth set state and Boston police on the trail.

Melia, who knows Garrett and was the officer who called his default 31 days ago, was passed on the Kingston road by a roadster which he was sure was driven by the defaulter. It bore Connecticut registration plates and there was woman in it.

He chased 10 miles, but couldn't keep up, and finally telephoned Dist. Atty. William J. Foley from Plymouth. Foley dispatched inspectors Concannon, McBrine and Conroy by motor and notified Boston and State police.

Deputy Superintendent McDevitt sent a score of telegrams to police officials in southern Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut, asking them to be on watch for the car.

The State police notified Chief Russell P. Dearborn of Plymouth, and the chief as wand stopped the suspected roadster in front of the Plymouth postoffice. It proved to contain a New Haven man and his wife. Chief Dearborn knows Garrett.

An hour later he was notified by Boston police to be on watch for the car, he said.

the casualties resulted from the collapse of walls, church steeples and the like.

Special trains are taking the survivors of the quake out of Potenza Province. Relief work is being handicapped by wrecked bridges and torn-up tracks.

His body was found in his automobile near the village yesterday. The skull had been crushed with a hammer, and a rope was twisted tightly about the neck. A sum of $300 was missing from his wallet.

CURTISS, PLANE PIONEER, DIES

Curtiss, Builder of First Seaplane, Climbed to Fame

New York, July 23 (AP)—Glenn H. Curtiss nurtured the young science of aviation in the middle years of its development when fainter hearts had grown discouraged.

His native town of Hammondsport, where he was born on May 21, 1878, is now called by its Chamber of Commerce "the Cradle of Aviation" because of what Curtiss and his associates did.

At 16 he started a bicycle shop, as did those other pioneers of aviation—the Wright brothers—and from that went into bicycle racing.

With a tomato can for a carburetor, he built his first motor bicycle in 1901. He continued to experiment and evolved his famous V-type motor. In 1902 he won the New York State road race, competing with the best riders of two continents. In 1904 he set a speed record at Ormond Beach, Fla., of ten miles in 8 minutes 54 seconds, and in 1906 traveled faster than man ever had before, a mile in 26 2-5 seconds, or at the rate of approximately 140 miles an hour. That record stood for years.

Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone, commissioned Curtiss to build a motor for a man-carrying kite. Mrs. Bell joined with him in financing what was called the Aerial Experiment Association. Gliders were experimented with, then they turned their attention to powered airplanes.

After years of fame came and the Curtiss "Jenny," the old type of plane, came into its own. Business boomed and Curtiss became a rich man.

After the war, this company was reorganized and expanded, new enterprises were formed in. In the summer of 1929 two of the oldest names in aviation—Curtiss and Wright—were joined in one corporate title. Curtiss virtually retired from active flying, but he remained a director of the Curtiss-Wright company.

TRAP SUSPECT BY OWN LIES

Washington, July 23—Enmeshed in a web of admitted lies, Herbert M. Campbell, Virginia realty operator, fought desperately today to convince the authorities he is not the slayer of Mary Baker.

Arrested on a charge of having sent the pretty Navy Department worker to her death on the night of April 11, Campbell was subjected to a merciless grilling.

It was Campbell who was responsible for the arrest of Herman H. Barrere, itinerant painter, in Montreal last week.

The revolver used by the slayer is said to belong to Campbell. Campbell said the day before the weapon had been stolen from his home and later returned to his office. Barrere, an employe of his at the time, had access to the house, he told police.

The two were brought face to face yesterday.

The meeting was followed by Campbell's confession that the revolver had never been out of his possession.

Campbell further admitted he had been in the vicinity of 19th and B sts. on the evening of the murder. It was here Mary Baker was last seen alive, quarreling with a man in her coupe. But Campbell was in company with another woman, he insists.

Recluse, Heiress to 100 Millions, Dies at 87

New York, July 23 (AP)—Mrs. Rebecca Wendel Swope, 87, whose brick mansion surviving among business buildings at 39th st. and Fifth ave., is one of the landmarks of New York, died Sunday at Quogue, Long Island.

Mrs. Swope's death was announced, for she and her sister, Miss Ella Wendel had avoided public mention for many years. Burial took place yesterday.

Mrs. Swope and Miss Wendel last year inherited the $50,000,000 to $100,000,000 estate of their sister, Georgiana G. B. Wendel, who died in a sanitarium in 1929.

The fortune was founded by John G. Wendel, grandfather of the women, who was a contemporary of John Jacob Astor in the fur business and who used his profits to buy real estate.

The brick mansion set among department stores in New York's upper thirties on Fifth ave. has been for many years one of the unusual sights of the city. Beside it is a spacious yard, fenced off from Fifth ave. by a high, barbed-wire topped wall.

The yard was retained by the Wendell sisters, the story goes in order that their pets might have a place to frolic. The house itself is said never to have contained a telephone, a phonograph or radio.

Mrs. Swope was said to have been seen in public. She visited, at long intervals, the opera or the theater, but always unostentatiously and generally unrecognized.

Balloon to Attempt 48,000 Foot Ascent

Belgian Professor to Study Atmosphere Nine Miles Above Earth

By KATHRYN STOFFREGEN,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

Brussels, July 23—Locked hermetically in the aluminum cage of a giant balloon, Prof. A. Picard, of Brussels, plans to rise to an altitude of 48,000 feet at Augsburg, Bavaria, next month.

In attempting to ascend more than nine miles the professor will breathe with an oxygen machine and look at the sky through a 20-inch pane of glass. Mt. Everest, highest known mountain in the world, is only 29,000 feet high.

EGG-SHAPED CAGE

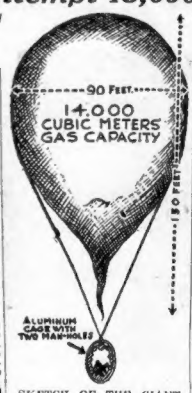
The cage is egg-shaped. There are only two manholes in it. The only danger of the trip, says Prof. Picard, is that the aluminum cage might burst because of the difference in the air pressure at 48,000 feet. Scientists, however, know that pure aluminum grows harder the colder its surroundings. At an altitude nearly twice that of Mt. Everest the cold is expected to be terrific.

ONE ASSISTANT

The professor plans to start his ascent on a day when there is little or no wind. With just one assistant aboard, he will take along accurate instruments to measure air pressure, temperatures, wind currents and other physical data.

At an altitude of 42,000 feet, which the professor expects to reach in about an hour and a half, there will be a 30-minute halt for observations. Ballast will then be thrown over in order to gain another 6000 feet.

The drop back to the ground, the professor says, will take at least three or four hours. If anything untoward happens, the men will not leave their cage. Parachutes, fastened to the aluminum egg, are supposed to unfold automatically and carry the scientists back to earth.



SKETCH OF THE GIANT balloon in which Prof. A. Picard, of Brussels, will attempt a 48,000 foot ascent next month. Two observers will be sealed in the suspended aluminum cage.

3 STOCK FRAUD INDICTMENTS SOUGHT

more than $200,000 worth of non-paying stocks in the metropolitan area. The sales were chiefly made through misrepresentation, according to Sawyer.

EVIDENCE READY

The business executive against whom an indictment will be asked is believed to have had knowledge of unlawful methods used in the sale of stock in his company.

Discussing the progress of the stock sales inquiry, Sawyer said:

"As a beginning to the fight to bring those responsible for the sale of unsafe stock to investors, we have concentrated on the evidence against the three men against whom the first indictments will be sought.

"We feel that we have sufficient evidence to go before the August grand jury. Because the evidence is so involved and this office is familiar with all the details, we will seek the indictments rather than throw the burden on an unprepared district attorney.

"We have learned through this inquiry that since the opening of the campaign against stock swindlers by the Evening American in co-operation with federal, state and county officials and the Boston Better Business Bureau, the 'stock racketeers' have been fleeing Massachusetts. A checkup by state police and private detectives working out of this office indicates that practically all the notorious 'blue sky' promoters who had been canvassing New England were well away from this state."

Sawyer said by the time the August grand jury is sworn he hopes also to have evidence prepared against the operators of an oil stock campaign under investigation.

WARNING BY WARNER

Atty.-Gen. Warner issued this warning to investors:

"We warn the public against any and all investments until after thorough investigation, and to beware of promises of big dividends, expectation of listing on stock exchanges, and reliance on telephone tips, special news services or tipster sheets. In so far as fraudulent practices in securing investments are brought to our attention, we will act."

Dist.-Atty. William J. Foley reported a setback in his plan to extradite George F. Redmond, former "bucket shop" operator, to stand trial here on state charges growing out of the collapse of his brokerage and the loss of $12,000,000 to approximately 20,000 investors.

REDMOND ON PAROLE

According to Foley, when Redmond was freed from Atlanta penitentiary by the government last December after serving five years he was placed under parole to the Salvation Army until 1933.

"At the State House I was informed that I could not bring Redmond back here unless I could prove him a fugitive from justice. If that is so we could not move against Redmond until 1933. However, I am going to confer with federal officials and find out if this is final," Foley said.

United States Atty. Frederick H. Tarr said he had not had his attention called to the Redmond case, but he believed the parole granted the former broker by the government would not stand in the way of prosecution on state charges.

It was also learned today that the attorney general's office is investigating the activity in the Boston district of A. Arthur Carter, known as "Curly" Carter, ex-convict and notorious bucket shop operator, recently indicted by a Federal grand jury in New York on charges of using the mails to defraud.

Three years ago Carter was indicted by the Suffolk County grand jury on charges of larceny in connection with the sale of stock in the Walklin Petroleum Co.

SENT OUT TIPS

Similar charges were brought against George Gallagher, associated with Carter. Later the cases against both men were nol-prossed by Dist. Atty. Foley after Carter was said to have made restitution.

During his Boston activities he sent out a tipster sheet known as the "Market Financial Service." It may be remembered by Boston investors and prospects as coming in an envelope which carried this advice in bold type:

"If you toss this in your waste basket, lock your basket in your safe."

The Market Financial Service was made up to resemble a standard newspaper. One issue had 24 pages, with sections devoted to editorials, pictures, women's pages and sport pages as well as market news urging the purchase of certain stocks.

Among these stocks which Boston investors should remember in sorrow were Parmac Porcupine Mines, Ltd., Consolidated Mills, Diamonite Products, Eastern Utilities, Trix Food Products, National Associated Investors and Expo Film Corporation.

Complaints to the Boston Evening American Stock Fraud Bureau indicate that many of these stocks are too well remembered.

Weather Holds Up Prince of Wales

London, July 23 (AP)—For the first time on record the Prince of Wales today was forced to cancel an official engagement because of weather conditions. Weather reports from Wales indicated flying conditions were impossible and the prince cancelled an airplane flight from London to Carnarvon to open the Royal Welsh Agricultural show. As it was impossible to reach Carnarvon by train in time for the opening the whole engagement was abandoned.

For Memorial to Founders of Boston

JOHN FRANCIS PARAMINO, noted Boston sculptor, and the bronze bas-relief, which will be placed on the memorial to the founders of Boston on Beacon st. William Blaxton is shown welcoming Governor John Winthrop, the Rev. John Wilson and Ann Pollard to his cottage on Beacon Hill. (Copyright, 1930, John Francis Paramino.)

HUB MEMORIAL NEARLY READY

The huge bronze bas-relief picturing the arrival of Governor John Winthrop and his party at the cottage of William Blaxton on Beacon Hill, which is to be placed on the memorial to the founders of Boston on Beacon st., is rapidly nearing completion.

John Francis Paramino, noted Boston sculptor, announced today that the work is nearly completed and that the panel will soon be ready to be placed on the memorial.

The memorial, which was ordered erected by Mayor Curley at a cost of $45,000, will be dedicated on September 17, during the observance of Boston Week. Ex-President Calvin Coolidge has been invited to be the orator at the dedication exercises.

The panel pictures Blaxton greeting Governor Winthrop upon his arrival from Charlestown, accompanied by the Rev. John Wilson and little Ann Pollard, the first white person of her sex to land in Boston. It is of United States standard bronze and is 12 feet four inches long and five feet five inches in height.

4 EXECUTED FOR KILLING LEE

Four gangsters were executed at Trenton, N. J., last night for the murder of George B. Lee, son of George M. Lee of Concord, a guard at the reformatory.

Victor Giampietro, Frank McErine, Joseph Melanga and Joseph Razo died in the electric chair for slaying young Lee, who sought to defend a railway payroll in a holdup in October, 1925.

"The electrocution of those four men cannot, of course, replace my boy in the family," the father said today. "While I feel sorry for their mothers and fathers and their brothers and sisters, I cannot feel sorry for them.

"If the mothers and fathers had kept them off the street at night and had punished them for things they did when young they wouldn't have been involved in such an affair."

Lee and his wife live on Barret Mills rd., Concord. It was due to the untiring efforts of State Detective Charles McCarthy of Newark, formerly of Framingham and a close friend of Lee, that the four gangsters were convicted.

Kansas City Is Armed for Triple Hanging

By MALVINA LINDSAY
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

Kansas City, Mo., July 23—One of the strangest last requests ever received here from a condemned prisoner has been made by Tony ("Lolypop") Mangiaracina, one of a trio of bandits to be hanged here Friday.

Mangiaracina has requested that the witnesses responsible for his fate—those who identified him in his trial as a bandit—be invited to see him die. Prison authorities have refused to grant his plea.

Among those who have requested "seats" for the execution are the father and two brothers of James H. ("Happy") Smith, traffic patrolman, who was killed by the bandits as they were escaping following the robbery of the Home Trust Co., June 14, 1928.

The city is preparing for the execution, which will be the first triple hanging in its history, with as much precaution as if it were repelling an invading army. Feeling has run high among the friends of the three condemned men, who besides Mangiaracina, are John Messino and Carl Nasello, and every measure possible is being taken to prevent an attempted jail delivery or riot.

The streets which pass the jail are barricaded and no one is permitted in this area without a pass from the sheriff. Armed guards are on duty. Powerful flood lights will make all parts of the jail's exterior as bright as day throughout the night.

From every vantage point machine guns are trained on the jail's approaches. The guards are armed with tear gas bombs, riot guns, rifles and revolvers.

The sheriff's office has received about 3000 applications to witness the hangings. Only about 20 spectators will be permitted in the gallows room. This group will include the officials of the event and a "jury" of 12 men which the law provides must witness the execution.

Officials Attend Cuddihy Funeral

Officials of State, city and park department, with L. st. "Brownies," attended the funeral today of George L. Cuddihy, known as the "L st. Miracle Man." Mark De Coste, the Rev. Joseph Breslin and Brother Maurice, all of Mission Church.

The bearers, all L st. patrons, were John P. Nolan, Joseph Nee, Joseph Green, Gerald Haligan, John Donovan and P. Jouannet. Burial was at Old Calvary Cemetery.

PROBE DEATH OF MOTHER OF 4

Springfield, July 23 — Mystery shrouds the death of Mrs. Angelina Rossi, 33, of Armstrong st., West Springfield, mother of four children, whose twisted body was found in her automobile in Hazen st., off Plumtree rd., last night.

She had been missing since Friday, and, according to Medical Examiner Frederick D. Jones, had been dead for several days.

Officials refused to comment on reports that Mrs. Rossi had died of poison. An autopsy will be performed today.

Police were examining the effects of Nicoli Dibiasi, 38, a friend of Mrs. Rossi, who shot himself to death Sunday.

Heavy Damage From Yorkshire Floods

Stokesley, Yorkshire, Eng., July 23 (AP)—Four days of incessant rains in the West Cleveland district of Yorkshire have caused severe inundations.

The river has risen three feet within 12 hours, washing away bridges, sheep and poultry and damaging crops everywhere. Several villages have become isolated. In Stokesley many families are marooned in their cottages.

THURSDAY—SECOND DAY OF

Jordan's Most Drastic Stocktaking Clearance

ONLY TWO MORE DAYS! THURSDAY AND FRIDAY!

¶ Everyone makes mistakes. People. Political parties. Nations. Stores. Smart people (and alert stores) admit their mistakes—and rectify them. That's why Jordan's planned this drastic 3-day stock-taking clearance.

¶ During the tremendous six months' period now closing when Jordan's served six million customers—381,068 more customers than in the same period in 1929—in every department some mistakes were made: 1. In some instances quantities were too large. 2. Some of the merchandise was too high priced for present economic conditions. 3. In some cases color assortments included shades that fashion did not accept. 4. And in every instance where tremendous quantities of merchandise are sold certain sizes sell faster than others.

¶ Therefore, every department in Jordan's is taking part in this three-day mistake sale. If you can use this merchandise—at these clearance prices—you will find these values outstanding, indeed!

On account of the nature of this sale no mail or telephone orders can be filled! So drastic are the reductions that all sales are final!

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor, Boston American:

In sight of the new traffic signals, I stood at the junction of Arch and Summer sts. watching them work.

It is too early to judge them, but this was my experience: Women in crossing were met in the middle of the street by the signal changing to "Go" to the drivers of the autos. These drivers scrambled to get ahead of one another.

One woman stood in the middle of the street with autos whizzing behind and in front of her. She finally retraced her steps and got back in safety to the sidewalk which she left a short time before.

She was right at the time of crossing. The changed signal caught her in a trap. This needs to be remedied, as women are the best customers at the department stores and they are not going to risk their lives by signals that are no respecters of persons. Traffic officers in Boston are very careful of women in crossing streets. Has this gone by?

MRS. T. Y. GLEASON.

EDITOR'S NOTE—According to court decisions, the pedestrians who start to cross the street on the correct signal and are trapped in the highway when the lights change have the right of way and automobilists are held responsible for their safety.

Wants to Know Value of Old Paper

Editor Boston American:

I have a copy of "The True Flag" a paper published in Boston, January 4, 1868. Can you tell me if it has any value as an old paper.

Veteran of Two Wars Lauds Editorial

Editor Boston American:

I am at present a patient at the John Adams Hospital in Chelsea. I have been domiciled here since the 16th of June and I am rapidly regaining my strength. I am a past commander of the Spanish War Veterans Camp 1, Mass. Department.

Since my admission to the hospital I have found a peaceful and serene atmosphere pervading the institution, the home and its environs, and a contented and satisfied manner among the members. I have spoken to many concerning living and other conditions at the Chelsea Soldiers' Home, and have found a unanimous feeling of approval.

I want to say that I am a constant reader of the Boston Evening American and have been for many years in the past. I am particularly pleased and enthused by reading your wonderful editorial of July 3, 1930, of "Our Patriot Forefathers Who Declared Our Independence 154 years ago. Are we ready now to endanger this freedom with entangling alliances?" "The Signing of the Declaration of Independence."

As a veteran of two wars I thoroughly agree with you. All red blooded Americans should organize, as the patriots did. Inform your Washington officials by resolution, that unless they abide by the tradition and policies of America, which are grounded in 154 years of experience, you will consign them to the political oblivion which has been the fate of the faithless in the past.

JAMES L. MOLLOY.
Past Commander, United Spanish War Veterans, and formerly Captain of Infantry, Retired.

Flays "L" for Attitude of Employes to Patrons

May I as a citizen of the Commonwealth take this means for thanking Governor Allen for his unprecedented action on Monday, July 14, in taking to task the Boston Elevated "System."

We (the public) have been too lenient towards what is called mismanagement. The system is not mismanaged, but in my humble opinion, mismanaged. I point two of the many instances to hear out my statement.

On October 18, 1929, at about 5:15 p. m., in the Leehmere Terminal, a woman alights from a Somerville ave. car, pays her fare, goes through the clicking turnstile and tries to cross the poorly lighted terminal to board a Kenmore sq. car standing on the second line of tracks. The terminal is nearly black and the first line of tracks are poorly laid, about 3 or 4 inches from the surface of the bedding of the platform.

This condition was directly responsible for the woman falling over the track and sustaining a severe sprain. I saw this accident, and, in fact, I was the one who went to pick this woman up. I helped her to her feet and found that both her knees were badly torn and she could hardly stand up. Two of these "system" employes were leaning against the wall of the waiting room. One answered, not without a sigh, "Go tell the starter, don't bother me." Later this woman had to return to her home in a taxi, paid for by herself.

Today, July 14, I stood for a half hour at the bus stop at Prospect st., Cambridge, near Porter sq., before being able to get a bus in any direction. There were at least a couple of dozen other people waiting at the same stop and they to had to wait.

Two or three times I heard the driver say to a passenger, "Come on, come on! I haven't got all day." At this same stop I saw a conductor administer to a woman, trying to board a bus, a real straight-arm push that I would have been proud of in my football days.

This gentleman, is just a peek at our wonderful, marvelous Elevated "System."

Offers Correction on Story of Old Manse

Editor Boston American:

In your issue of July 15, No. 31 of the "Tercentenary Pilgrimages" relative to The Old Manse at Concord has just a few errors in it.

In 1834 Emerson and his family went as boarders to the Old Manse then occupied by his step-grandfather, Dr. Ripley, but the following year he bought the house in which he lived until his death which is now known as the Emerson house. The article leads one to suppose he continued to live in the Old Manse and that the fire of 1872 occurred there, which is not so. It was Emerson's own house which was partly burned and for which the town subscribed to rebuild and also funds with which to go abroad.

Urges Continuance of Fight on Foreign Alliances

Editor Boston American:

More power to your great American paper for help against foreign nations usurping our God-given power to govern and protect our country and islands.

Please see at once if you do not have it, Boston Public Library has it in periodical cabinet room No. 43, cabinet Round Table published in London in favor of the International Paper and Power Trusts, Page 118, June, 1930.

"The reapproachment with America may perhaps be responsible for these methods believed to be the particular forte of American journalism, which were so distasteful to the old-fashioned statesmen but must now be regarded as an essential accompaniment of modern democracy."

See Round Table, Dec., 1929, March, 1930, and June, 1930, and copy in your papers quickly as showing how these foreign pacts, etc., were all prearranged over there and how they try to say that we must not give God all power but be afraid of Asiatic bluffing and foreign jealousy, etc.

Such men as Demarest Lloyd now in Washington after a long stay of years and work abroad after his work as president of Royal Coalition here, ought to be exposed at once. Keep up the fight.

Believe Doyle Will Dictate Spirit Book

London, July 23 (INS)—Spiritualists here believe that within two years that the late Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, famous author and spiritualist, who died recently, will dictate through a medium a book describing his spirit life.

Ernest W. Oaten, one of the foremost leaders of spiritualism in this country, said today:

"His presence on the other side will help us enormously, and I should not be surprised if he were to write a book on spirit life.

"That is what we have wanted for a long time—a really comprehensive account of how life goes on in the other sphere. And I believe that Sir Arthur will give it to us."

CHRISTENDOM UNITED, HOPE OF KING

London, July 23 (AP)—Hopes for a reunited Christendom were expressed by King George in reply to an address from members of the Lambeth conference when he and Queen Mary received them in Buckingham palace today. The King shook hands with each visitor.

"I thank you most sincerely for your address and for the spirit of devotion and affection which animates it," said the King addressing his guests. "I was especially touched by the assurance of your sympathy with me in my recent illness and your pleasure at my recovery.

"It is a deep satisfaction for me to receive and welcome this great assemblage of bishops of the Anglican Communion, which includes not only bishops from my dominions, but from the United States of America.

"I remember 10 years ago when I had the pleasure of receiving the sixth Lambeth Conference that the question of the reunion of christendom was foremost in your thoughts. You put before the world an ideal of unity and a plea for new endeavor to heal rents in the fabric of the church. I am most happy to learn that this appeal has not been fruitless. It is my earnest hope and prayer that the work which your last conference began may prosper and that the deliberations of this present conference may result in some notable advance toward this most desirable end."

Sugar Growers to Get Federal Aid

Washington, July 23 (AP)—The benefits of the agricultural marketing act may now be extended to sugar beet and sugar cane growers under an announcement of the federal farm board today that these products had been designated as commodities within the act.

Invitations have been sent to representatives in the 17 sugar beet producing States to meet in Greely, Col., August 2, to develop a national co-operative marketing program.

START WORK ON FOUR BILLION BUDGET

Washington, July 23 (AP)—Preparations of the Government's 1932 budget was started today by the budget bureau which began hearing department heads on the money they will need during that fiscal year.

Only a week ago President Hoover urged all cabinet officers to make a close scrutiny of estimated expenditures for the present fiscal year and reduce them wherever possible. He pointed to mounting expenditures together with the indicated decreases in revenue due to the business depression.

Indications were that the 1932 budget would amount to $4,000,000,000 or more. The budget for the present fiscal year is only $3,900,000,000 under that mark. For the last few years the cost of government operation has been increasing about $12,000,000 a month.

King Alfonso Takes Up Dog Racing

London, July 23 (AP)—The London Express said today that King Alfonso of Spain became so interested in greyhound racing during his recent visit to England that he had asked an English expert to buy 40 dogs for him. He will establish tracks at Seville and Barcelona.

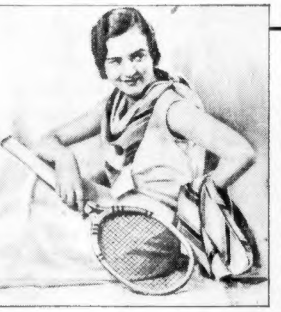
ELINOR GLYN ON
"What is IT in Dress?"



Gives this advice to BOSTON Girls

"Dear Miss Glyn: Won't you please write an article about how men like a girl to dress? I am pretty and I try to buy nice clothes, but somehow I just don't know the secret . . . men seem to overlook me, while other girls who don't spend more than I do are popular."

WHAT is "it" in dress? What appeals instantly to a man's taste?

Many girls, and wives, too, have asked me this, and out of long experience I know the answer is very simple.

Men are dull, drab looking creatures, themselves, Gladys, therefore they get a thrill out of the GAY, COLORFUL CLOTHES a woman can wear. Ask any man to describe a girl's dress, and in almost every case, he begins by speaking of the COLOR.

Shouldn't we play up to this, girls?

There are two simple rules:

FIRST: Select the pretty colors which are most becoming to you . . .

THEN: Keep them lovely and vibrant as long as you wear them.

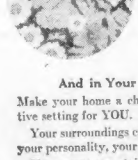
Remember, only just as long as the COLOR is kept in its perfect, new state, has it the POWER TO CHARM.

Just a little fading takes away some of the power to thrill—means a loss of "it."

Be careful to guard color charm, always. There is a very simple, sure way to do this, through the use of that wonderful product, Lux. Ordinary soaps steal away a bit of color pigment as they cleanse, but Lux is especially made to preserve colors in all their joyous allure.

Anything safe in water alone is JUST as safe in Lux.

Sample washed 10 times in Lux—color unfaded, "live," vibrant as the day it was bought!



Sample washed 10 times in ordinary "good" soap—undeniably faded—the allure of color lost.

And in Your Home

Make your home a charming, attractive setting for YOU.

Your surroundings can help get over your personality, your charm.

Keep pretty curtains, slip covers, table linens, always as gaily colorful as when they are new. Here, too, Lux will help you, for remember, men love color. ELINOR GLYN.

If it's safe in water . . it's safe in LUX

PORT OF BOSTON

By CARL MORRISON

The harbor is getting a good example of Mayor Curley's policy of having Boston shipping construction needs handled in our own localities whenever possible.

In the Atlantic Works of the Bethlehem Corporation in East Boston, are being built two boilers and two engines for the new Boston ferryboat, and also two boilers for the new police boat. Local engineers say that this is the first time in some years that the city has given such work to a local concern.

The ferryboat itself will be constructed at Fore River. The frames are "bent" now and affairs will soon be ready for the laying of the keel. This keel-laying would be a good means of advertising the city if Mr. Scully's publicity bureau gets into action to arrange for some kind of public ceremony.

We understand that the American Legion has some suggestions for the naming of the new ferryboat. Harbor people generally concede that the Legion properly should be recognized in this respect.

NEW TYPE FISHERS

The Booth Fisheries on the Boston Fish Pier have two new fishing trawlers under construction at Bath, Me., which are due to be ready at the end of this year. The trawlers will be 125 footers with Diesel engines. They will be the "last word" in fishing craft.

BOOSTS THE PORT

Capt. George Lord of the Port Authority paid a visit yesterday to the Cunard freighter Maiymo, here from India with cargoes of burlap, rubber, tea, Manila and other material typically Indian. Capt. Smith was invited to express his views on the harbor. He complimented Boston on her speedy despatch of cargo, which handling he said was the equal of any port he had visited. He especially referred to the small amount of breakage. He enjoys entering the harbor, which he says is very accessible. He was enthusiastic about the radio compass functioning outside. When asked about his ideas regarding the proposed new sea laws, he replied that the project of ship lanes impressed him as being practicable.

Next Sunday evening the White Star liner Cedric will arrive at Commonwealth Pier from Liverpool with 150 tons of express cargo and several passengers.

The White Star liner Adriatic, which is now en route for Queenstown, is making her final voyage from the port of Boston. She will enter service to Spain and other ports. The new Britannic, world's largest cabin ship, will pick up the Adriatic's trail, assisted by the Cedric.

Two Men Hurt in Jamaicaway Crash

Two men were seriously injured when two automobiles collided in the Jamaicaway at Craft st., today. The accident happened when a machine operated by John Condon, of 115 Webster ave., Cambridge, collided with a machine traveling in the opposite direction, on the wrong side of the street. This machine, police say, is registered to Henry Flynt, of 248 Austin st., Hyde Park. The driver of the latter car ran away.

John Condon, 25, of 115 Webster ave., Cambridge, and Patrick Mathews, 22, same address, were both removed to the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital. Condon has a possible fracture of the left ribs and Mathews a fracture of the skull.

TODAY'S WHO'S WHO

Mr. Rogers has been active in this firm since its formation a quarter of a century ago. At that time the firm owned many sailing vessels, but now concentrates upon steamships. It has a reputation known all over the world.

This member of the governing board of the Chamber of Commerce maritime association was a versatile athlete in his younger days, and still takes a keen interest in baseball, golf, bowling and horsemanship. His versatility extends to his business relations, for he is recognized as an authority on a variety of shipping subjects.

Light and tempting food
FOR SUMMER
—but it must be nourishing!

"GIVE us something light for supper, Mother; it's too hot for a heavy meal." So say the children—and so says Father, too. Yet Mother knows that little bodies must be nourished in summer as well as in cooler seasons—and adults need sustaining food all the year 'round.

The happy solution has been found — and thousands of housewives are serving MUELLER'S COOKED SPAGHETTI often during the summer. This delicious food is a balanced meal in itself — or, if you prefer, use it in recipes of the kind shown at the right and left.

Sauce from the Natural Juices

Blended with a sauce of luscious ingredients — of tomatoes, other fresh vegetables and zesty whole-milk cheese, it contains essential elements for promoting sturdy growth and creating buoyant health. It is light, fluffy and easy to digest. It actually does "melt in your mouth."

No Coloring Used

The rich, tasty sauce in which MUELLER'S COOKED SPAGHETTI comes, derives its consistency entirely from the ripe tomatoes, other fresh vegetables and fine old cheese used in making it. Not a drop of "filler," artificial coloring or preservative is added.

More Leisure Hours for YOU

Best of all, this delightful food comes to you already cooked. The work has all been done for you in sunlit kitchens under the most modern sanitary conditions. You need only heat the can, open it and serve — the work of minutes instead of hours. Keep half a dozen cans of MUELLER'S COOKED SPAGHETTI in your pantry at all times. You will find them most handy whenever you wish to serve a delicious, balanced meal in the shortest time. Ask your grocer for MUELLER'S COOKED SPAGHETTI. He has it or can get it for you.

MUELLER'S COOKED SPAGHETTI EN CASSEROLE WITH LEFT-OVER MEAT

1 can MUELLER'S COOKED SPAGHETTI; 1½ cups left-over meat; 2 tbsps. melted butter; ½ tsp. salt; ⅛ tsp. pepper; ½ cup of buttered bread crumbs.

Remove cooked spaghetti from the can. Combine left-over meat, cut into small cubes, with melted butter, salt and pepper. Place layer of cooked spaghetti in well-greased casserole, then layer of left-over meat mixture. Alternate layers with cooked spaghetti on top. Cover with buttered bread crumbs and bake in moderate oven for 20 minutes.

Another simple way is to remove the cooked spaghetti from the can, place it in a baking dish, spread a few slices of bacon on top, and put in the oven to heat.

STUFFED GREEN PEPPERS

1 can MUELLER'S COOKED SPAGHETTI
6 green peppers
6 tablespoons grated cheese

Cut tops off the peppers, remove seeds and fibre. Stand in boiling water for 10 minutes. Drain. Then fill each pepper with the cooked spaghetti, cover the top with grated cheese.

Place peppers upright in a pan containing a small amount of hot water. Bake in moderate oven for 20 minutes.

CLUB PLANNING FLYING FIELD IN NEWTON

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

Boston will be the starting point of a group of 150 flying fields in the United States, to be organized by the International Aeronautic Club, according to an announcement made today by M. H. Seymore, president of the organization.

The club has been functioning in England and on the Continent for several years, and the decision to extend its activities to this country was made recently by officials.

Catering solely to the private flyer, or to the man who flies for a living and owns his own plane, the club has met with instantaneous favor across the water, Seymour said.

FIELD IN NEWTONS

A tentative field has been selected in the Newtons, according to Seymore, but no definite decision has been made as to its location. The chief engineer of the club, A. L. Hannon, has several other sites in mind, but the Newton field has a slight edge at present.

Seymore has conferred with officials in Washington and New York aeronautical circles, and has been well received at both places. Porter H. Adams, former president of the National Aeronautic Association, and chairman of the Boston Municipal Air Board, endorsed the plan, and promised his wholehearted support to the venture.

Financed solely by private capital, the club is in no way a stock-selling organization. The flying fields are conducted along the most modern lines, with concrete hangars and complete night flying and weather equipment.

Membership in this country is estimated at present at $250 a year, which entitles the member to every possible convenience and service to make his flying more pleasant, and eliminate any possible danger connected with amateur piloting.

"In England and on the continent," stated Seymore, "we provide hotel accommodations to club members, service their planes, furnish them with weather reports, and most of all provide a rendezvous for them at which they will be at home. If a club member is going on a cross-country trip, we have his ship ready for him, and advise him as to the best route to follow. As soon as he takes off, we call the next field, also a club field, and give the time of take-off.

HUB STARTING POINT

"If, for any reason, the member does not arrive at his destination in a certain length of time, a plane is immediately dispatched to pick up the trail.

"Boston has been selected for the starting point in the nation-wide hook-up, and we expect to start construction of our first field here before the end of the summer."

"The club is in no way a commercial organization. We carry no passengers, do not teach students to fly, and operate no air lines. It is in existence solely for the man and woman who owns his or her own plane, and would like the convenience and comradeship of such a club and we operate on a non-profit basis. The more members we get, the lower the initiation fee and yearly dues."

"Lungs" for Naval Divers

STEPHEN J. COMINSKI, veteran U. S. Navy diver, wearing the apparatus by means of which he can descend to a point 370 feet below the surface of the sea, with no ill effects to him and without the use of a diving suit. The use of the apparatus by men trapped in a sunken submarine would eliminate much loss of life. The hatches of the sunken vessel could be opened, allowing the water to rush in, and the men would shoot to the top of the water. Once there, the "lungs" are readily convertible to life preservers. Below is shown parts that make up this unique and newly developed "lungs." (International Newsreel photos.)

4 Injured Breaking Up Cat-Dog Fight

ALL CLEARED IN SHIP DEATHS

Bridgeport, Ct., July 23 (AP)—Coroner John J. Phelan today exonerated all members of the crew of the ill-fated freighter Thames of responsibility for the death of Pilot Lambert L. This agreed with the finding of the federal investigators immediately after the tragedy.

LINGLE'S 'BOSS' ASKS $250,000 IN 'SLANDER'

Chicago, July 23 (AP)—Robert M. Lee, city editor of the Chicago Tribune, has filed a $250,000 slander suit asking redress of the Illinois Publishing & Printing Co., publishers of the Herald and Examiner, for an article published yesterday.

The suit was an outgrowth of charges and insinuations which have followed the assassination six weeks ago of Alfred (Jake) Lingle, Tribune reporter, who worked under Lee for 10 years.

The article in question, reprinted from an editorial in an afternoon paper of the previous day, suggested that Lee, because of his close association with Lingle for a decade, be called before the Grand Jury to furnish whatever evidence he might have of Lingle's activities.

Lee was the author of a signed article in the Tribune recently in which he asserted there had been no suspicion of Lingle's integrity by the city editor's office until after the murder. There had been insinuations, Lee wrote, but never were they accompanied by facts.

Only part of the slander action was filed, but Francis X. Busch, attorney for Lee, issued a public statement which said that in his opinion the Herald and Examiner article slandered Lee in that "the implication is obvious that Mr. Lee knew of and countenanced the alleged criminal activities of Jake Lingle."

Mexican Policemen Threatened by Reds

Mexico City, July 23 (AP)—Two policemen were threatened with lynching today by a group of Communists who had arranged a demonstration against Mexico, United States, Ortiz Rubio, Herbert Hoover and Dwight Morrow.

The police saved themselves by firing their guns into the air until reinforcements arrived.

Curtis Gives Half Million to Bowdoin

Portland, Me., July 23 (AP)—Donations of $500,000 to Bowdoin College and $100,000 to the Maine General Hospital here, by Cyrus H. K. Curtis, Philadelphia publisher, were announced today.

Neither President Kenneth C. M. Sills, of the college, nor Charles H. Payson, treasurer of the hospital, would discuss the details of the gifts.

31 Rado Stations Placed on Probation

Washington, July 23 (INS)—Thirty-one broadcasting stations were placed on probation by the Federal Radio Commission today. It was announced they were given renewals of licenses from Aug. 1 to October 31 with express reservations that it shall not be construed as a finding that they are "operated in the public interest."

Private Detective Fined in Auto Case

Sidney Morgan, 26, of Sycamore st., Everett, a private detective, was fined $100 today in Newton court on charges of driving a car while under the influence of liquor, and profanity. He appealed. He was arrested after neighbors complained about a party on Fairoaks st., Newton.

Miss Troutman, a patrolman said, was driving in Eatontown in January and was slumped over the wheel of her car. Dr. Charles Weiner of the Branch testified today he had prescribed the liquor.

Bay State to Retain 16 Congressmen

Washington, July 23 (AP)—Another change in tentative reapportionment of the House on the 1930 census was indicated today.

Arizona will not gain an additional member of the House, as had been figured, on the basis of her estimated population as of January 1 it was indicated, and Massachusetts therefore may retain her present membership of 16.

Vote of Censure for Mace Grabber

London, July 23 (AP)—By a vote of 90 to 28, the parliamentary Labor party today expressed strong disapproval of the action of John Beckett, Labor member of the House of Commons, in seizing the speaker's mace on July 17.

The Labor members described Beckett's act as bringing discredit upon the parliamentary Labor party as constituting a gross affront to Parliament.

THE JOSEPH HASEY HOUSE, REVERE

Probaly the oldest house standing in Revere is near the boulevard overlooking Chelsea creek. It is in use as a dwelling and has a small yard in front surrounded by a white picket fence.

This house dates from 1653, possibly earlier. It was built when Revere was part of Boston. It has withstood attack by red men and white.

PRETENTIOUS HOME

Joseph Hasey built the home in the early days of the colony. It must have been a pretentious structure for that period, being roomy and comfortable.

During the Revolution, the house was occupied by Joseph Green. He served his country by, furnishing food to the Provincial troops. These troops took part in the second battle of the war, which took place in sight of the old house. On May 27, 1775, the Battle of Chelsea Creek was fought and Sir Henry Clinton was outwitted, losing 30 British officers and men.

MARCHED IN STORM

He delayed his attack until too late, for the rear guard of the colonists had crossed to Breed's Island before he was aware that they were on the march. Six hundred New Hampshire and Massachusetts men, under Col. John Stark, maneuvered after dark through a terrific thunderstorm from Medford to Breed's Island, while Sir Henry and his officers were enjoying food and drink.

Revere was a part of Boston until 1739, when it was set off as Chelsea. Then it became known as North Chelsea, and finally the citizens called the town Revere after the famous rider of his city.

This landmark is probably the best known in the town. Revere is easily reached by the North Shore route.

Tells Dry Agents to Use Their Brains Instead of Force

Washington, July 23 (AP)—Amos W. W. Woodcock, prohibition director, today instructed prohibition agents to use "brains" instead of force in dry law work.

At the same time he announced suspension of two agents for searching the automobile of E. G. Duncan, Maryland road commission engineer. The officers, Charles R. McCartney and John T. Weigel, were laid off three days without pay.

They also were charged by Duncan with firing on his car July 16. Woodcock said investigation failed to show this to be true.

LEWIS IS FINED FOR CONTEMPT

Springfield, Ill., July 23 (AP)—John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers of America, was fined $500 and all remaining defendants in the recent miners contempt of court cases were found guilty today by circuit Judge Charles Briggle, after considering the findings of Master-in-Chancery Trutter.

Lewis announced he would appeal. He contended during the hearing that the Illinois group had abandoned shelter of the injunction by setting up a dual organization. Judge Briggle ruled that Lewis never had asked for a modification of the original injunction.

Those found guilty with Lewis include Frank Hefferly, provisional president; Joseph P. Goett, provisional vice-president; John T. Jones, secretary-treasurer, and the 12 provisional district board members.

Ye Horseless Carriage

WAY BACK IN 1892, you or your family may have owned something in line with this speed wagon. But if you did or did not, it is one of the links in the great history of transportation. You'll see it in the parade this morning in Cambridge.

Ancient Autos Roll Again in Parade

The history of transportation, from the earliest Indian sled to the modern automobile, will be portrayed in a series of parades to be held in Greater Boston this week when the Standard Oil Company of New York announces its new motor fuel, Banner gasoline.

The first procession is scheduled for Cambridge at 10:30 this morning and in Somerville at 3 in the afternoon. Thursday morning it will be held in Lynn at 10:30, and Friday it is scheduled to take place in Brockton at 10:30 a. m., in Quincy at 3 p. m.

Among the more than 80 units will be a dozen automobiles characteristic of the turn of the century. These antique conveyances, which frightened horses on the streets of Boston 30 years ago, will be occupied by people dressed in representative costumes of the period.

Transportation in the Orient, by camel, donkey train and coolie carrier, will also be depicted by several unusual groups. Accompanying these will be quaint old buggies, carryalls, tally-hos and carts of a hundred years ago.

Music will be furnished by more than 100 musicians, comprising the Weymouth Post Band of the American Legion, the Scotty Drum and Bugle Corps from Chicopee, Mass., and local bands from the various cities where the parade is to be held. Clowns and other professional performers will be additional features.

Months of laboratory experiment and road tests have been necessary to produce the new motor fuel, Banner gas, which the parade is to announce, according to R. W. McMillan, district manager. Quantities of the new gas have been coming into the company's plants during the past two weeks and have been distributed to the Scotty pumps in this territory in preparation for this announcement.

RUNYON SAYS

by Damon Runyon

Copyright, 1930, Universal Service, Inc.

Atlantic City, N. J., July 23—Your faithful operative usually likes his heat good and hot, but the weather of Manhattan Isle got too tepid even for his salamander blood last week.

So he fled "down Atlantic," as the Philadelphians say, only to discover that the climate adjacent to the sad sea waves almost as soppy as it is along Broadway. The breeze came from offshore over the week-end, instead of from off the bottom of the ocean, and it was hotter than a forty-five.

However, your operative found sporting atmosphere even in the heat of the day. While stumbling about among the recumbent forms in the sand in front of the Ritz-Carlton, he came upon the pale torso of none other than Mr. Muggs Taylor, the Philadelphia flatic promoter, and Mr. Taylor promptly broke into speech.

BIG BOUT PLANNED

"You see that building yonder?" he said, pointing to a great, squat gray structure down the boardwalk a few hundred yards. "That's the famous $13,000,000 auditorium that seats 42,000 men women and small children, and that's where one of these days you will see one of the greatest indoor boxing spectacles this country has ever known."

Pressed for details Mr. Herman Muggsy Taylor dug his toesies in the yielding sand, and grew very mysterious. But I happened to know that Mr. Taylor was recently in New York trying to borrow Senor Vittorio Campolo, the Beanpole of the Argentine, from Madison Sq. Garden Corp., to appear in Atlantic City against Signor Primo Carnera, and while he failed to get Vittorio, I am reasonably certain that he still has Carnera.

And I am inclined to think that the opponent for the large Italian he now has in mind is Willie Stribling, the King of the Cane Brakes, assuming that Willie does not get out-jugged in his bout with Old Phil, the Painter, in London the latter part of the month. Primo and Willie in Atlantic City in September would draw quite a few bobs, no doubt of that.

SHOW FOR CHARITY

As originally planned, Mr. Taylor intended running the Carnera-Campolo show for the benefit of a charity under the auspices of Atlantic City newspapers. They give a sum for show here every year, and Mr. Taylor usually runs it.

Mr. Taylor offered Campolo, or rather the Garden, a flat guarantee of $25,000 with a privilege of 17½ per cent of the gate receipts.

It struck me that the Garden might have made a good deal by lending Campolo to Atlantic City with the stipulation that the winner of the bout here must must fight Jack Sharkey for the Garden in September, a match that would draw upwards of $750,000, especially if the winner happened to be Carnera.

Still, Campy would draw well with Sharkey, too, if he beat Carnera, because the winner of the September bout would be the man to meet Herr Max Schmeling for the world's title next year, not in New York, then in Miami would the bout between Sharkey and the winner of the Carnera-Campolo bout be enormously valuable.

But the King of the Cane Brakes must not be overlooked as a great drawing prospect, if he licks Phil, the Painter. I hear, however, that Willie is going in against Phil with a bad hand, and he better make it short and snappy, as he did with Von Porat, if he hopes to win.

CHANCE FOR STRIBLING

Stribling and Carnera fought twice in Europe, each winning a bout by foul. It is said that these were strictly "business bouts," although Willie himself told me down in Florida that he never saw a man who could take a body punch better than the Italian, intimating that he tried him out just for fun.

If Stribling beats Scott, however, you can bet all the peaches in Georgia that Willie won't care to "do business" with anyone else, because he will be headed directly for the chance at the world's heavyweight title that ne blew once before in Florida.

I think a bout in Atlantic City involving Carnera would be a prominent, especially Campolo, would easily sell out the auditorium with its capacity of 42,000, and besides the gate money would bring into Atlantic City at least $2,000,000. It is the type of spectacle that would lure the folks from far and near.

And Mr. Herman Muggsy Taylor, lolling on the hot sand in front of the Ritz-Carlton is undoubtedly giving the matter plenty of earnest promotional cogitation.

Hockey Star Killed

Lowell, July 23—Word was received by relatives here that Thomas Jones of Halifax, N. S., a hockey player widely known in this section, was electrocuted while working on his radio at his home.

Cochet and Borotra May Battle U. S. Team

Paris, July 23 (US)—The French Davis Cup team is preparing to convince the world that their domination of these international matches is not to end this year.

They feel that Wilmer Allison caught Henri Cochet on an off day when the latter was defeated in straight sets at Wimbledon.

Cochet is looked upon to win both the matches, while Borotra, who defeated Lott last year and again this season at Wimbledon, is being picked to account for the third victory.

Americans here, however, even conceding Cochet two wins, feel that Lott is rising to the peak now, and that both he and Tilden will be able to meet the bounding Basque, and that America will win with the victory over the doubles team.

Allison and John Van Ryn, the East Orange, N. J., lad, two-time world champions and winners last year at Paris, are easily better than Jacques Brugnon and Christian Rousseus, tentatively named for France.

There may be a battle on Saturday, however, if the singles score is notted at 1 all on the first day. France is not content to concede the doubles, and in that case, Cochet and Borotra may throw themselves into the breach and play all five matches themselves.

Tilden, however, feels that both he and Lott can account for a victory, and that if the doubles team is in fine shape, they will be able to defeat any combination France has to offer.

The matches get under way on Friday with two singles encounters, the doubles following on Saturday and the remaining singles on Sunday.

Tilden Feels Ankle Will Be No Handicap

That injured ankle of Big Bill Tilden's is not going to harm Cochet and Borotra, but the big Davis Cup back to the United States. At least, that's the way the tall Philadelphian feels about it—ankle or no ankle, Bill will be ready for the French in the challenge round beginning Friday.

The weakened member responded to yesterday's concentrated treatment, and Bill was well enough yesterday to go right back to the slippery courts of Roland Garros Stadium to play Gene Mako Lott of Chicago, his singles mate, in two out of three sets, 6—3, 6—5.

After the practice match, Tilden explained:

"I thought it was unwise to play, but I had to get a workout.

If only to test my strokes against Lott, who is now approaching the top of his game.

"After three sets, I thought it best to call it a day, not because my ankle hurts, but because discretion is the better part of our chances to regain the Davis cup. I'll take a rest today, although perhaps I'll get in a set or two in the afternoon."

Betting Even Money on French-U. S. Tennis Tilt

Auteuil, France, July 23 (AP)—France is no better than an even money choice to retain the Davis Cup in 1930 for the first time since Rene Lacoste, Henry Cochet, Jean Borotra and Jacques Brugnon journeyed to the United States in 1927 and won it for France in 1928, with Lacoste and Cochet playing singles, bets were freely made at two to one on the Frenchmen.

The absence of the machine-like Lacoste in 1929 brought the odds down but France still remained a favorite at seven to five and six to five.

In resorts frequented by Americans, French bookmakers, making their rounds for the collections of bets on the horse races, today generously posted the information:

"Davis Cup tennis even money, take your pick."

Sarah Palfrey Beaten by Marjorie Gladman

Manchester, Mass., July 23 (AP)—Sarah Palfrey, 18-year-old member of the American Wightman cup tennis team, today was eliminated in the Essex County Club invitation tennis tournament by Marjorie Gladman, young California player, in a quarter-final match, 6—0, 3—6 and 6—0.

Mary Greef of Kansas City, another Wightman cup player, was eliminated in a third round match by Mianne Palfrey, Sarah's older sister, 6-4, 8-6.

Mrs. L. A. Harper of San Francisco, the third seeded player, was ousted in a third round match by Josephine Cruikshank of Santa Anna, Cal., 8—6, 2—6, 6—2. Mrs. Harper last week won the Longwood tourney, but she showed but faint traces of her usual steady game against her sister Californian.

Three Double-Faults Charged to Sarah

The two Wightman cup players were decidedly off their game, as was Edith Cross of San Francisco, the third Wightman cup player in the tournament, who was eliminated yesterday by Virginia Hilleary of Philadelphia.

Every stroke in Sarah Palfrey's usually accurate game was unbelievably erratic. She committed every error possible in tennis, and had three double faults. After the match she explained she had trouble focusing on the ball, the net and the lines.

Miss Palfrey and the other two Wightman cup players arrived from England on Sunday and plunged into the tournament without benefit of the practice necessary for them to regain their form.

Other amazing upsets followed on almost every other match played during the morning. Miss Hulbert, who yesterday conquered Edith Cross, was shut out of the semi-finals by Dorothy Weisel of Sacramento, Calif. Miss Hilleary played the best tennis of her career against Miss Cross, but she slipped so badly today that the promising California player defeated her easily, 6—3, 6—2.

Miss Gladman and Miss Cruickshank will clash in an all-California semi-final, and Miss Morrill will engage Miss Weisel in the lower half of the draw.

TEAMS TRAIN FOR NATIONALS

Competition is growing keener at Camp Curtis Guild, Wakefield, where teams from the various branches of the U. S. service are now in training for the national shooting championships at Camp Perry, Ohio.

The Marine Corps team, captained by Maj. H. L. Smith of Philadelphia, is in close competition with units from the Army, Navy, Coast Guard, National Guard, R. O. T. C. and C. M. T. C.

Starting on June 19 the various teams have taken their places at the butts, and practice will continue until August 15. The national championships at Camp Perry, in which the cream of the country's marksmen will participate, will take place from September 1 to 14.

Every day, unless prevented by rain, rifle and pistol crack at the Wakefield range, while coaches point out faults to the marksmen. The rifle ranges are from 200 to 1000 yards for slow and rapid fire, and the pistol range, 50 yards.

SUKEFORTH AND STRIPP SUCCESSFUL

By JOE CASHMAN

It's next to impossible for a ball player to make the grade in the big show unless he registers with his manager, yet there are exceptions.

In town now with the Cincinnati Reds are two players who became regulars in spite of managerial objections.

One is Clyde Sukeforth. The other is Joe Stripp. Neither was wanted at first. Each is rated very highly today.

In reaching their goal, they showed that there is more than one way to overcome the prejudice of a pilot for they adopted very different means to attain the same end.

Joe Cashman

Sukeforth, a native of Washington, Me., attended Georgetown and played in the Boston Twilight League during the early years of its existence.

He was considered quite a pitcher in those days but because of his ability to hit, he was shifted to the outfield when he broke into the semi-pro ranks.

He didn't like the idea of changing first, so he decided to try his hand at catching. He clicked almost immediately, was seen by a Cincinnati scout and signed with the Reds.

He spent his first season in fast company as a bench warmer. Being a smart young fellow, he realized that he had a lot to learn and welcomed the opportunity to sit back and watch the veterans in action.

Sukeforth Got Tired of Warming Bench

Came his second season and another siege of sitting on the sidelines. He didn't like that so well but voiced no objections, feeling that the same fate would befall him next year if he would see him playing regularly.

That following year was last year. "Suke," as his mates call him, went South to become the first-string catcher of the Reds only to find that Jack Hendricks, then manager of the club, still considered him a third-stringer or less.

Now this was too much for the small town boy who was determined to make good in the big city. He had watched the other Reds catchers for two years and was confident that he was far better than the best of them.

Accordingly, he told his boss so in no uncertain terms and added that he would either be the regular catcher or would go home to dig potatoes.

Rather than sentence a strong, healthy young man to hard labor, Hendricks gave in to the youth's demands.

Knowing that he would have to make good from the start to hang on under the circumstances, Sukeforth did that little thing. Less than a month after the season opened, he had proved so much better than any of his rivals for the berth that Hendricks was on the pan for not having pressed him into service earlier.

JACK CONWAY TELLS WHY TIGER QUIT RING AFTER SECOND TUNNEY BOUT

By JACK CONWAY

It was early in February of 1929. The night train from Tampa, Fla., to Miami was 100 miles outside of the Magic City when the door to my drawing room popped open.

"Dining car ahead and so let's have some coffee!" declared the person who had opened the door.

Jack Conway

I looked up and saw Jack Dempsey. The former champion had been in Tampa in connection with the promotion of the 10-round bout between Jack Sharkey and Young Stribling.

Up forward in the diner Dempsey opened up to me on the boxing game.

"Madison Square Garden Corporation has just offered me $40,000 a year to take over Tex Rickard's former job as head of the boxing department," said Dempsey. "I have told them that $40,000 isn't enough. I would be good for that much in touches if I were to stay around New York all year.

"I would consider the job if it paid $40,000 and also gave me a percentage of the profits from boxing.

"It isn't any cinch being matchmaker for a corporation. Tex told me he was ready to quit shortly before his untimely death.

"Rickard was a matchmaker of the old school. He signed bouts up in the back room of a saloon or in the darwing room of a train. It all depended on where he happened to be at the time.

DIRECTORS HELD REINS

"The Garden people wouldn't let Rickard do that. If he planned a big bout he was obliged to get the okay of a board of directors before he could go ahead with things. Tex didn't like that, and I don't think I would either.

"If Tex hadn't died he and I would have done some big things in boxing. This Sharkey-Stribling bout was to have been his last venture for the Garden. He was then going it on his own, and I would have been associated with him."

"Perhaps you would have fought again?" I ventured.

"That matter was being considered," went on Dempsey. "But the opponent would have had to be all right, the kind of a fellow I would look good against."

"Would you have consented to take on the winner of the Sharkey-Stribling bout?"

"I will never fight Sharkey again, but Stribling would be all right," answered Dempsey with great frankness. "Sharkey has a great left hand, also speed and is a terrific right-hand puncher."

"He was just lucky to nail you with a wild right hand," I ventured.

"Don't call it luck," protested Dempsey. "He hit me with five or six right hands right on the jaw. I don't know how I weathered that first round. Nobody can tell me Sharkey cannot hit.

"Sharkey would be a poor opponent for me at this stage of the game. Stribling, however, would be all right. He rushes in close and holds. I could then hit him. I wouldn't have to go looking for him as I would if I were to fight Sharkey.

"If Heeney had licked Tunney he would have made a swell opponent. I could knock him out in two or three rounds. A slow fellow like Johnny Risko would also be all right.

"I don't like to meet boxers any more who move around on me. That's where Tunney had a big advantage in our two bouts. He kept moving, and my legs are not what they used to be.

PASSED UP TUNNEY

"After the fight in Chicago Rickard wanted me to meet Tunney again in New York. I refused as I felt Gene had just the style that would always give be trouble.

"If I had been in as good condition for either of my bouts with Tunney as I was the night I stopped Sharkey, I would be heavyweight champion of the world.

"I had a million worries before the Philadelphia bout. There were as many sheriff's around my training camp at Atlantic City as there were sparring partners. One day I climbed out a rear window to avoid some process server. I also had been out of action for three years before I battled Tunney. That is too long for anybody to lay off.

"I expected to lick Tunney quickly at Philadelphia. I didn't consider him a great fighter.

"The defeat sent me to the mountains of California. I trained all winter and into the spring. I then came on to lick Sharkey.

"I hurried back to the coast after that bout. I only could remain there a short time as I had to go to Chicago for the second Tunney bout. I lacked the old snap while training in Chicago. I had made my big effort against Sharkey and couldn't seem to get going properly.

"Sure I clipped Gene in that seventh round. I always felt that if it hadn't been for the long count I would have won my title back. But my legs went back on me when Tunney got up and started running away."

Dempsey stopped talking for a minute while he drank his coffee. His mind seemed deep in thought.

ASSOCIATED WITH TEX

"It was tough on old Tex to go the way he did," resumed Dempsey. "He had got over all the rough spots and was sitting pretty when the end came. I sure would have liked to have teamed up with him.

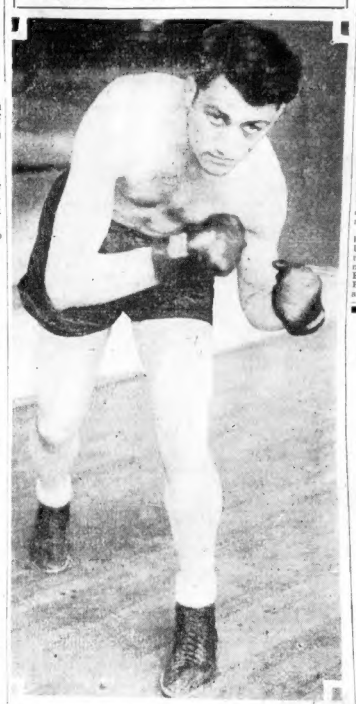
"We were in on the Miami Beach kennel track and several other ventures in Florida, together. Tex was a great partner. We would have done well promoting a couple of heavyweight shows each year."

Dempsey pounded his tremendous fists against the table.

Rickard loved those fists as they had helped draw $10,000,000 into the box office and established Tex as the greatest promoter in the world.

Jack Conway will have another article on "The Inside of the Boxing Racket" in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.

READY FOR THE "HUNT"



PAUL PANTALEO, who meets Babe Hunt in 10-round feature at Braves Field tonight in show under the auspices of the Boston Garden. After two postponements on account of rain, Pantaleo is rarin' to go.

Hunt and Pantaleo to Try Again Tonight

By RINGSIDE

With an even break from the weather man, Babe Hunt of Ponca City, Okla. and Leo Pantaleo of Chicago, will let the big punches fly in a 10-round bout at Braves Field tonight under the direction of the Boston Garden.

The bout has already been postponed twice. The weather man has been giving the big fellows all kinds of opposition, but they are hopeful they will finally get in their licks tonight.

Matchmaker Alex MacLean of the Garden looks for a hard, gruelling battle. Neither Hunt nor Pantaleo is a fancy boxer. They are a couple of ambitious youngsters who have punched their way out front in the ratic parade.

Hunt recently outscored Al Friedman, while he also chilled Knute Hansen.

Pantaleo is still ranked with the undefeated. His most notable ring feat was a 10-round draw with Ernie Schaaf who recently scored a couple of wins over Tomy Loughran.

If Pantaleo wins tonight, he will demand another shot at Schaaf.

Sullivan and Piazza In the Semifinal

The eight-round semifinal will bring together Oddone Piazza of Italy and John Patrick Sullivan, Irish battler. This mill is expected to produce plenty of action.

There will also be three eight-round matches in the diamond belt heavyweight eliminations. Steve German of South Boston will take on Dan Regan of Gardner; Pat O'Flaherty of South Boston will tackle Jack Dudley of Worcester, while Jack Moulton of Roxbury will trade punches with Joe Cabana of Chelsea.

Jack Conway says the two postponements have not caused him to change his selection. Jack is picking Hunt to win over Pantaleo.

RED PAIR WIN WAY TO TOP

ished, it was discovered that the Reds had a catcher who, in his first year on the job, had hit harder than the great Mickey Cochrane and handled pitchers as well as any.

Stripp, christened Joseph Valentine, took the first base job away from the veteran George Kelley by an entirely different method.

He came up to the Reds from Columbus and was used all around the infield. He wasn't considered good enough to play any position regularly but his versatility made him a handy man to keep around.

The first thing that Joseph did after arriving in "Cincy" was to get in right with the fans. It has never been explained how he did it, but he wasn't present long before the boys and the girls in the stands yelled nothing but "We want Stripp" whenever they failed to see his smiling countenance on the field.

Hendricks had to listen to it, and then Howley.

Weymouth Dan figured that Stripp must have had something to be in such demand, so he started trying him out. The kid failed him for quite a while but the fans kept insisting that he be used, so Howley, in desperation, decided to get rid of Kelley, who had gone away back, and give Joseph American a crack at the initial bag.

The Concord Elks' baseball team will go to Waltham this evening to start a second series with the Waltham City Club.

The Elks won the first series, by capturing the rubber game on Independence Day. The second encounter will be played on the Concord diamond, probably early in August.

BIG DILBOY POST SHOW TONIGHT

Although Dilboy Post has already staged three outstanding amateur tournaments their show tonight at Dilboy Field, Somerville, will be the best the veterans have staged this summer. Competition will be held in five classes 126, 135, 147, 160 pounds and heavyweights.

About eight heavyweights will compete including Henry Surotti, Leominster high school athlete; Tony Cechini, Medford; Ted Johnson, Somerville; Peter Ruskowski, Worcester; Homer Bienus, Dorchester; Don Perry, Newburyport, and Henry Le Clair, Chelsea.

The 160-pounds division should be hotly contested with Red Chase, Lowell; George Van Acker, Lawrence; Bob Allen, Dorchester; Jimmy Barry, Dorchester; Jim Carney, East Cambridge; George Kelley, Boston, and many others being among those entered.

Notes of the Sandlots

Preskins and Klimas, the Knights of Lithuania pitching staff, are doing some great mound work for the South Boston team, which now has 20 wins and three losses for its 1930 record.

Preskins has won eight and lost one, while Klimas has 10 victories and but one setback.

Two former Red Sox ball players are with the St. John's Club in the Greater Boston Twilight League. They are Carl Sumner, who broke in rather sensationally, and Lloyd George Stirling. Pelequin, former Holy Cross pitcher, who was in the large leagues for a while, is a new member of the Down Home nine.

The William J. Mahoney nine of Roxbury is looking for games at home or away. Strong semi-pro nines are desired and the South Shore teams, Bayside, Colasset and Duxbury are preferred. Call Highlands 7360.

The Lynn Cornets, keep on top of the semi-pro ball world after conquering the Somerville Cubs, Grenada Shoe, Dorchester and Roslindale, have hooked two real attractions for their Lynn ballowing on the week-end.

Somerville will be the magnet for wandering semi-pro baseball fans who take in the leading attractions tomorrow night when the House of David nine plays the Somerville Cubs.

Jim Seibert will pitch for the Davids. He was due to work last night against the Philadelphia Colored Giants, but the rain interfered. Al Blanche will entertain for the Cubs, with Danny Connors, Providence College pitcher, ready to relieve him in case the bearded players get nasty with their war clubs.

ALL TWI NINES PLAY TONIGHT

Some lively action will be witnessed in the three Greater Boston Twilight League games which are scheduled for this evening with all six teams in the circuit playing on local diamonds.

An inter-city rivalry will be staged at Fallon Field, where the Roslindale team will play hosts to Hal Janvrin's fast stepping Dorchester team. Both outfits were edged out of the first half championship and will be hot on the trail for the final half hunting to enable them to get into the final series.

The first half championship Malden nine will entertain Portland on the Pearl St. Stadium while the up and coming St. John team will journey to Quincy to tackle the home club in the other contests carded for this evening.

New Handicap System Needed

METHOD NOW IN VOGUE IS UNFAIR

By BILL GRIMES

While waiting for the weather to clear yesterday, the rain having interrupted their round at Oakley, W. C. "Chick" Connolly and John Cowan discussed the present system of handicapping in golf.

Connolly and Cowan have been actively connected with golf for many years. In fact they are both veterans. Connolly is one of the best known amateurs in New England. He started his golf at the old Allston Golf Club more than 30 years ago. Unquestionably Chick Connolly has participated in more tournaments and has been more closely identified with the game than any other golfer in New England. He is an exceptionally keen student of the game from every angle.

Bill Grimes

John Cowan has been playing and teaching golf for almost three decades. He is rated as the leading instructor of this section. Until recent years, he was a top-notch playing professional and still has few peers from tee to green.

Connolly and Cowan disagree with the present system of handicapping, which is based, generally, on the difference between par and the three-round average of players.

They point out, and rightly that under the present system handicaps are most inaccurate.

It is possible, and still more important is often happens that, let us say, a 15-handicap player shoots par golf or within one or two strokes of par figures for 18 holes, but, because he meets up with trouble on two holes, he has played to his handicap.

All too often, players handicapped from 10 to 15 get their shots rolling almost perfectly during open tournaments and after their scores have been reduced, their net cards are many strokes below par, some of them even dropping to the early 60s.

Check on Every Player Is Impossible

It is an absolute impossibility for the State handicapper to keep in touch with the developments of even the newcomers in open golf competition. Even the club handicappers are unable to keep posted on the games of their own members.

In compiling the net scores at the conclusion of open tournaments invariably the reduced figures better par from five to ten strokes. J. W. Dukelow, a 15-year-old Reading high school boy, emerged from the recent Stoney Rise open with a net 60, having shot a gross 71.

This is only one of many cases which prove conclusively that the system in vogue is not a fair method of judging the ability of players.

Connolly and Cowan are of the opinion that the game would be benefited if the handicaps were based wholly on how players hit their shots, a system which has been in vogue in Scotland for generations. Coming from two so well versed in the game this suggestion is entitled to serious consideration.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Golf's Greatest Teacher

It is assumed, of course, that in working out the back swing as we have been outlining it, you will keep your head still. Holding it fixed will you may have discovered cause the feeling of uncomfortable tightness at the top of the back swing. Here you must remember that your lazy body muscles do not want to do this hard work if they can possibly escape it. Therefore if escape is denied at one outlet these sluggish muscles will try another. The main outlets are, first, moving your head, which releases the pressure against your muscles and, second, breaking the right knee downward, which releases the resistance established in your right side. To do either of these things is like pulling the trigger before you are ready to shoot, since it robs you of all spring-like recoil action. The forward swing usually is thought of as a matter of hitting action.

By long odds the most satisfying shot in golf is the drive, and many hold it to be the most useful shot. Chester Horton's new monograph almost guarantees you a good drive. It is so simple and easy to grasp. This fine instruction will be sent free. Address Chester Horton, care this newspaper, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Ask for the monograph, "Driving."

DOUBLING for LOVE

by VINIFRED VAN DUZER

Judy, a Country School Teacher, Is Leading a Double Life

CHAPTER 1

Mornings of early summer she would trip down the hill to the schoolhouse, something colorful, something blithe about her despite the sober navy serge and spectacles she wore.

She would move along lightly, with the air of dancing, not hurrying for she never was late, but briskly for she had no patience with inefficiency.

"People needn't be stupid. I'm sure of this." She would say it all in a rush, bringing her full lips into a straight line, shaking her head so light would strike hard gleams from the spectacle lenses.

"You'll not be so sure of anything when you've lived longer, Judith, my dear." Thus Peggy Archer who had lived twenty years longer than her daughter and was neither particularly brisk nor particularly efficient.

"I'm twenty-two," Judy would protest with a toss of her too sleek head, bringing her five feet nothing up to something near statehness.

Would Argue
Strives for Dignity

So they would argue, Judy before the dresser perhaps, pulling her hair into a tight little knot on her neck, striving for the dignity she considered seemly for a schoolma'am finishing out her first year of teaching; Peggy poking a surreptitious finger at the curly gray-blonde fluff about her own pretty face, glancing from Judy's commonsense brogues to the size three and a half satin slipper swinging beneath her house dress.

Judy would tip the mirror to make sure the navy hem discretely covered her knees and sometimes would run the powder puff over her nose. But often she forgot this.

She would start off with her swinging, easy stride, pausing to scowl at the old pear tree which needed trimming, turning at the bend in the road to flip a careless farewell.

A purposeful young woman. Staid. Serious. Sensible.

Miss Rowe who lived on up the hill mentioned it to Peggy as she came along the path under the syringas for a bit of gossip, wagging her long horse's face up and down.

No Foolishness
Speaking of Miss Archer

"No nonsense about Judith Archer. Just the age of my Betsy—and look at them! Wasn't I telling Betsy's pa only last night she might's well be in China for all we see of her. Tearing out goodness knows where night after night, wasting every cent she gets her hands on for things that's ruined once wearing. You ought to be glad, Mis Archer, that there's no nonsense about your girl."

"Mmmm." Peggy murmured politely. Little hands going out to smooth the flounces of a pink house dress—drawing back quickly. Mrs. Rowe eyed the pink dress! she would waylay Mrs. Torking from River Road when she went by and "speak her mind." She would say, "Frivolous creatures, Mis Archer—"

Peggy kept nodding, smiling, murmuring: "Yes, of course. Yes"—

"Judy doesn't fill your house with boys till you can't move for stepping on them. Flip young things. Varnished hair and trousers wide as a skirt, each leg. None of that foolishness about Judith Archer, I can tell you!

"No? Can't be helped. I mean," Peggy amended hastily, "isn't it lovely? Thank you, Mrs. Rowe."

When the horse's face had waggled up the hill, Judy's mother would smile her very young smile, shake her head till the gilt gray curls nodded, loiter along the gravel path toward the big, square, weather beaten house.

"Peg? Hey Peg—she gone?" This from beyond the hedge on the downhill side in a laughing, flippant voice.

"Come on over, Marie. Feel like a cup of tea, if you'll make cinnamon toast. Declare, if it doesn't wear me out—what Peter Bontell calls Mrs. Rowe's 'painful respectability.'"

Feel Like Tea
She Called Over Hedge

A smallish woman in a sleeveless dress came through the hedge. She had bright, darting black eyes in a face seamed with fine wrinkles, and her arresting red hair was mouse gray at the roots.

She slipped her arm in Peggy's and they stepped through the French door to the dining room where they cleared a corner of the breakfast table for their tea and cinnamon toast.

"Did Judy buy the green crepe, one with the bows down the front, Peg? Saw it was gone from the Specialty Shoppe."

"Wouldn't even look at it. Said bows were for French dolls. She wants the money for a summer course at Columbia. Judy's wonderful, but — oh, Marie"—

"I know, Peg. If you'd get her to give up her glasses."

"If I could! Wouldn't you just know she'd be a school teacher? Planning to be a college professor—and me the kind of mother who'd adore a daughter in the movies! Mrs. Rowe's right, I suppose; I don't deserve an offspring like Judy."

"Nonsense. She'll be getting married one of these days."

"Say not. You know how she feels about men. Keep 'em in their places, the brutes. Ruth scares them out of their wits or incites them so mad they want to go primitive. I don't think she'll marry."

Girls always say that. Judy hasn't found the right one yet. Why, she's never, Peggy"—

Peggy sighed. "I was engaged four times before I was Judy's age."

"Earning a living makes a difference. You were a home spelling, dearie."

A tiny white line showed at Peggy's lips, a shadow in her eyes. "If Judy's father had lived —well"—

Then it was 11 o'clock and Peggy Arthur must jump up and sweep the breakfast dishes into the kitchen so Judy might not see them when she came for lunch. Marie, too, had a little nervousness of Judy's fierce young accusing glance. She went back through the hedge.

A clatter on the veranda—the progress made that nose—a cool voice speaking from the door.

"Lo, lil Ma. Why all the mad rush?"

"Marie was over and I got talking. Mornings do fly."

"Oh—Marie. Proof that brain is not a vital organ."

"You'll not be so hard on people when you're really grown up, lamb. And how," inquired Peggy Archer, "was the spelpeens today?"

"Imp!" cried Judy. "No kind of devilment they don't know. Sent two to the principal this morning—though a bit of help little Roy Varnum is with second grade savages. Shake some sense into them, is what I'd like!"

"Now, lamb. First of June—

Walsh Will Plead for Harmony

KEYNOTE AT WORCESTER PARLEY

Senator Is Expected to Take Lead in Conference; Curley Will Keep "Hands Off"

Senator David I. Walsh, in accordance with assurances given Chairman Frank J. Donahue of the Democratic State Committee, is expected to attend the Democratic conference next Monday at the Bancroft Hotel Worcester.

From a source close to the Senator it was learned today that Walsh is attending to odds and ends in Washington following the special session and will come to Boston in time for the Worcester get-together.

After a conference in Massachusetts the Senator plans, it is understood, to go west to campaign for the re-election of his friend Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana.

WILL URGE HARMONY

From the standpoint of the senator's past activities, his contribution to the Worcester meeting will be a plea for harmony in the ranks for victory in the November election. Undoubtedly he will deliver the keynote address from the national angle.

Under no circumstances, it is further understood, will Walsh, who is a strong believer in the direct primary, interfere in the scramble for the nomination for governor or senator.

While the situation facing the party is embarassing to Walsh it is even more so to Mayor Curley, who if reports are true, will take no part in the primary or the present attempt of some of the leaders to pick a State ticket.

FRIEND OF ALL THREE

The Mayor it is known is friendly to Joseph F. O'Connell, former Mayor Fitzgerald and former Dist. Atty. Thomas C. O'Brien. O'Connell and O'Brien are both candidates for the Senate nomination, while Fitzgerald, who has been flirting with the governorship, seems likely to be picked as the conferees choice for the top.

The mayor's projected trip to Europe, however, will remove him for a part of the time, at least from the scrimmage area.

At the Democratic state head quarters clerks were today finishing up the last batch of notices to the men and women entitled to take part in the deliberations at Worcester. Between 800 and 900 party stalwarts are expected to be in attendance.

CAMPAIGN TO SAVE A LIFE OPENS

Governors Change Date of the N. E. Safety Drive to Accommodate Allen

Due to the unavoidable absence from the city of Gov. Allen Friday, the conference of New England governors scheduled for that day to launch the "Save-a-Life" campaign to reduce automobile accidents has been postponed until Tuesday.

An important business engagement which at the last moment demanded his presence in New York led the Governor to prevail on the other chief executives to delay their session rather than act without him on a highway safety program which has been one of his especial projects.

The governors will follow the same program on Tuesday as originally planned for Friday. They will meet in the council chamber in the State House here at 11:30 a. m. to make the final plans for the campaign and to draw up proclamations.

Later they will have lunch at the Algonquin Club with Gov. Allen as host. All proceedings at the State House will be broadcast over Stations WBZA and WBZ.

The safety campaign will start Aug. 1. It will unite the six New England states in the first mass movement in this country to check the motor accident toll.

Compulsory inspection of equipment on all cars will be one of the principal features of the Massachusetts campaign.

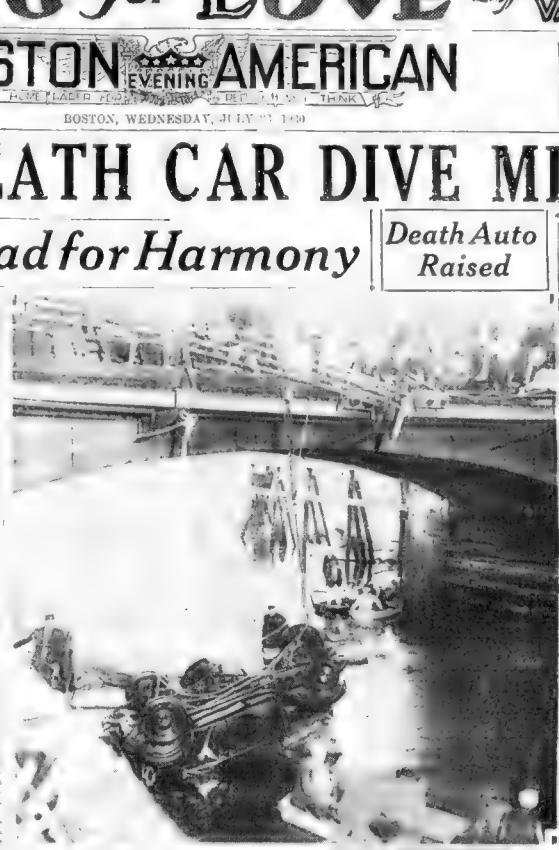
Funeral Tomorrow of Chief Welch

Funeral services for Chief of Police John F. Welch of Medford will be held at 9 a. m. tomorrow at the Immaculate Conception church, Malden. The entire Medford board of aldermen will meet at his home, 45 Garfield ave., at 8:30 a. m. and escort the body to the church.

Delegations will be present from various departments as well as representatives from the Massachusetts Association of Police Chiefs of which Welch was a prominent member. The bearers will be members of the Medford police department.

Urges Relief

In order to provide work for the unemployed and to enable the city to take advantage of the prevailing low interest rates Mayor Patrick J. Duane has sent a letter to the Waltham City Council, urging the hastening of building projects now under consideration.



DIVERS AND POLICE were carrying on a search today for at least one person, Arthur C. Rowe, Jr., believed lost when his machine crashed through the Pines River Bridge, Revere. The top picture shows the death car being lifted from the waters of the Saugus River.

MOVE TO HONOR HERO, 14

A counter movement was started today to honor Saul Brilliant, 14, Bermaken Hotel, Nantasket, who was established today as the actual rescuer of Sumner Shapiro of Hull at Nantasket Beach on July 15.

Yesterday a movement was started to have Freddie Bloom, 12 of Manomet st., Nantasket, rewarded for the rescue. The Bloom boy, however, has maintained he played no part in the actual rescue, but merely stood on shore and called for help.

Shapiro was caught in the undertow while bathing at the beach. The Bloom boy called for help and Brilliant went to Shapiro's assistance. After some little difficulty he got him to shore.

MAYOR FORBIDS SACCO MEETING

Declaring that the Sacco-Vanzetti case is ended forever as far as Boston is concerned Mayor Curley today denied a request of the International Labor Defense for a permit for a memorial meeting at Parkman Bandstand on the Common August 22, the third anniversary of the execution of the two men.

The request was received today from Joseph Block, secretary of the defense organization.

"The cases of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti were disposed of by the courts of Massachusetts and they are ended forever," the mayor said. "If any persons desire to discuss these cases they have the privilege of doing so by hiring a hall. They will not be permitted to the Parkman bandstand for that purpose."

The mayor granted the request of Harry Canter, chairman of the Labor Defense Council, to hold a protest meeting

CROSS STREET QUICKLY AT RIGHT TIME

Traffic Officer Sees Success for New System if Walkers Lend Co-operation

By JOHN NEARY
Scollay Sq. Traffic Officer

As soon as the pedestrian fully understands the new traffic light system, it is going to be a success.

After watching the lights work for two days I am sure that in a week officers can be well used in enforcing traffic regulations and taking care of pedestrians in the districts where the lights are being operated.

The first day it looked as though the new lights would tie up traffic and that long delays would be a common occurrence. The change the second day was a big surprise to me.

As I see it now the pedestrians, especially the women folks, will have to be careful for a while and make sure when they should cross the streets.

GIVES TIPS TO ALL

Somehow, people can't make themselves understand that they can cross in front of automobiles that are stopped on a red light and that by doing so they also are practically across the street when the red and yellow signal for pedestrian traffic is lighted.

Another little matter that will have to be impressed upon the operator of an automobile is to get started quickly when the green light shows. I have noticed many drivers wait three or four seconds after the signal light has changed to green and this delay tends to impede the movement of the traffic.

Perhaps one of the best features of the traffic signals is the absence of timid motorists in the city. There has been a noticeable drop in the number of pleasure vehicles in the city since Saturday, and I think that this is due to the absence of the timid or inexperienced operator. It is also possible that many cars with poor brakes are being kept out of the congested traffic area.

SEES IMPROVEMENT

Just what will happen to the traffic cops when the new signal is working smoothly I cannot guess. Many of the boys have discussed many possibilities as to what might be done with us.

I suppose that some of us will be sent back to regular routes, others will be sent to parts of the city where no signal lights are in operation, and others may be used to tour the light district watching for motorists who attempt to beat the lights or ignore them entirely.

Of course the lights are entitled to a fair trial, and as I said before, I am sure that they will be a success. I think that it will not take longer than a week before motorists and pedestrians will understand them.

Jaywalkers Still Active in Boston

If system is success traffic towers will be eliminated...
Pedestrians trapped in middle of street failed to keep close watch on traffic lights

DESPITE THE NEW signal lights, the intersection of Washington, Winter and Summer sts. is still something of a problem for officials, due in great part to careless pedestrians, as the photo shows. Don't be a "jaywalker!" Cross quickly! Motorists have their care in the traffic tangle, too. It is up to them to watch out for pedestrians trapped in the middle of the street by a sudden change of the light. They, according to the law, have first right to the street.

"BARN YARD" GOLF VIES FOR BOSTON HONORS WITH "TOM THUMB"

FRANCIS HORAN AT CONCRETE BLOCK HAZARD

THE BUILDERS—CHARLES G ROVER AND JOSEPH HORAN

MARGARET AND MARY O'LEARY AND ELIZABETH HORAN

ON WITH THE GAME. "Barnyard" golf is making its power felt in the play spirit of young America. They care not for "Tom Thumb's" golf popularity. Out at the Lindsen st. bridge, Brighton, a great and grand course is now being built. Golf is being played on the completed holes as the builders work. Young Joseph Horan over there at the cement-blocks hazard is just a beginner and promises well, say the builders. In the center hazard a funnel from a cement mixer. We think it a snap hole. No par has been decided on. The double-hod-carrier hole finds three girls at play as the boys work on the course. Neighborhood championships will soon be in order. Several caretakers have been appointed by the juvenile owners.

GOLF COURSE IS BUILT BY BOYS

As a result of the craze for "Tom Thumb" golf, which has swept up from the South and inundated New England, a group of Brighton boys have built a freak "Barn Yard" golf course at the Linden st. bridge.

Cement mixer funnels, mortar boxes and concrete blocks are among the hazards on the course, the construction of which was in charge of Charles Grover and Joseph Horan.

The unusual links attract much attention from adults as well as young people and are expected to prove as popular as the "Tom Thumb" courses.

FAILS TO BLOCK SUBWAY WORK

A move by Louis J. Marshall to block construction of the $3,000,000 extension of the subway at Governor sq. was dismissed today by Judge William C. Wait in Supreme Court when he denied petitions for an injunction and writ of mandamus against Traffic Commissioner Joseph A. Conry and Transit Commissioner Thomas Sullivan.

Marshall, declaring extension of the new subway was a waste of money, explained at length to the court a system of right and left turns through streets close to Governor sq. by which, he said, the place could be made as safe as a school yard.

After his petitions were denied Marshall said he would appeal to the full bench.

Bianchi May Yet Win Road Contract

Carlos Bianchi, whose bid to build a section of the new Boston and Worcester highway was ordered held up by the members of the Governor's Council because of a protest of the award of the contract, may yet construct the road.

Praise Story on Care of Motherless Birds

No bird or animal story printed in a long time has aroused so much public comment as that in yesterdays Boston Evening American regarding the two baby bluebirds "adopted" by Mrs David Holbrook of West Peabody, after the parent birds had been killed.

Favorable and unsolicited comment from many sources was received following publication of the story and pictures of Mrs. Holbrook and the fledglings.

Mrs Frank H. Chase, secretary of the New England Anti Vivisection Society, declared:

"We feel grateful to the Boston Evening American for publishing the story about how Mrs. David Holbrook, of West Peabody, cared for two little motherless bluebirds. Such stories touch the strings of human kindness. They are the kind our society is trying to emphasize.

"The story impressed all persons interested in birds and animals. There is much in newspapers which is repellant to our taste, but such instances of kindness are a welcomed exception and deserves the fullest publicity. It is a splendid move to popularize the love for birds."

Winthrop Packard, secretary of the Massachusetts Audubon Society for the Protection of Birds, 66 Newbury st., said:

"The birds are our friends. Why not protect them on our home grounds? This is what our society is urging and this is what the story of Mrs. David Holbrook, published in the Boston Evening American, illustrates.

"It is the educational value of such a story that I like. No doubt it was read by thousands of young people.

"It will influence and impress them of the need of taking care of birds, keeping them away from the destroyer when helpless in their nests. All such stories help the cause of being considerate of the rights of those who cannot speak for themselves. I consider this story well worth reading for its educational aspect."

Police Open New War on Gaming Machines

Boston police officials have declared war on all gambling machines and Deputy Supt. James McDevitt has ordered police to watch for the operation of slot machines in stores throughout the city.

That the police are conducting a drive on gambling machines became known today following the arrest in municipal court of Edgar Reiser and Arthur J. Moore, 87 Hart st. store owners, on charges of possession of a gambling device. Their cases were continued.

Commissioner Goodwin said probably 500 veterans would be placed when the subway work is begun and later there will be work for 2500 more men.

Mr. Goodwin said, "I have approximately 6000 applications for employment as laborers. I believe the names of 1500 war veterans are already filed."

PARAMOUNT TO STAR LEON ERROL IN 'THE HADDOCKS ABROAD' FILM

'SIN TAKES A HOLIDAY' PURCHASED BY PATHE

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

(Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service, Inc.)

LOS ANGELES, July 23—Donald Ogden Stewart, author of "The Haddocks Abroad," might have chosen Leon Errol himself for his fictional character. Leon's funny feet and all just suit the comedy character created by that excellent humorist, Mr. Stewart. No doubt that is why Paramount has given him this role.

PARAMOUNT, in producing "The Haddocks Abroad," intends to keep all the Stewart humor intact. That means Leon, of course, and Richard Wallace, who lately returned from a trip around the world, will direct the picture. Mr. Wallace is going to get by with the title "Ex Mistress." Charles Kenyon has just finished adapting the book and getting it in readiness for Roy del Ruth to direct. So far the name of the mistress has not been made public, but Neil Hamilton has the male lead. He was taken out of "Illicit" to be put into "Ex Mistress" and Jame Rennie given his part in "Illicit" as the lead. Sounds a bit complicated but anyway you know what I mean. I shall be curious to know what happens to this spicy tale.

Mary came to the party accompanied by Charles Farrell, Frederick Wordick, Enid Bennett's husband, coming alone because Elsie is busy with her stage show. Jean Arthur, Garfield also alone. Billy Burke is still in William Haines and Mrs. Pat. Campbell discussing American customs and English manners. Colleen Moore, our own little Irish dynamo, plus a French attraction when she arrived. King Vidor carrying Eleanor Boardman's coat and dancing. Ann Woldorf have the exertion of climbing the steps. Helen Haves in red brocade, her home guest, Fay Bainter, the Leon Bonnells, Lionel Barrymore, Conrad Nagel and Gene Markey among those present. That's all today. See you tomorrow.

I AM GLAD to say that I have not had a picture Hedda Hopper heads a parade of interest and she always does her part well. No matter how impossible the vampire role may be. I WAS LUNCHING with Olga Hall-Brown, British journalist, one day this week, and she told me that Evelyn Laye is writing a column for a British newspaper and doing it well. Being a woman's suggestions I intimated that possibly Miss Laye had a talented ghost writer, but the British writer was indignant at my suggestion.

Constance Talmadge

Mrs. Hall Brown told me that England still hopes Constance Talmadge will make a picture. "I have found no one to take her place," says Mrs. Hall-Brown. The British fans ought to see Connie, brown as a berry, wearing a bathing suit and spending her days on the beach with her husband, Townsend Netcor. Mrs. Hall-Brown greatly admired June Collyer who was lunching at the Embassy. She said that June was the prettiest girl she had ever seen.

WILL SOMEBODY please tell me how Warner Brothers are going to get by with the title "Ex Mistress." Charles Kenyon has just finished adapting the book and getting it in readiness for Roy del Ruth to direct. LAST WEEK OF 'ALL QUIET'

That magnificent picture, "All Quiet on the Western Front," closes a re-engagement at the Majestic next Saturday night so the persons desiring to see the film masterpiece have but a few days more for choice of time. There have been more than 100 showings and despite adverse weather the photoplay has done excellent business.

This talking screen transcription of Erich Maria Remarque's book was made with a lavish hand. It is recognized as a spectacle, but its appeal does not lie in that. Its power lies in its deep human appeal. It is more than a movie full of uniforms; it is a human document.

Lewis Milestone's direction continues a portion in the front rank of his fine directorial efforts.

Film Who's Who

Raymond Hackett, who played Jimmie Dugan, Norma Shearer's brother-attorney in "The Trial of Mary Dugan," appears opposite the star again in "Let 'Er Go," the screen attraction at Loew's Orpheum this week. Hackett was tested for the camera while he was playing the same part on the road in "The Trial of Mary Dugan" that he portrayed in the all-talking screen version. It happened while the road company was playing in Los Angeles. His voice test was made soon after. Both tests proved his ability so he left the stage show and began to rehearse for the picture version. Up until that time he had spent 27 years of his life on the stage. His mother is Florence Hackett, a screen star in the old Lubin days.

EUROPE TOUR BY SYMPHONY DISCUSSED

By MOSES SMITH

THE REMARKABLE SUCCESS of Arthur Fiedler's Esplanade Concerts last year and their even greater popularity this season have been a source of surprise to many people who felt that Boston is not alive to public enterprises and innovations. On the other hand, the musical celebrations in connection with the Tercentenary, which even a friendly supporter must admit have not lived up to advance expectations, point in exactly the opposite direction.

IF A MORAL can be drawn from these two isolated though striking cases it is that in Boston things are done best by a small group of individuals, working on their own authority, spending their own money. Instead of the "booster" spirit noticeable elsewhere, enlisting large numbers of the total population, we have here works backed, if at all, by more or less anonymous persons, contributing their private funds for public purposes, and desiring no repayment other than the deed itself. To point to a more important example, we have the success of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, sustained for almost forty years by a handful of citizens, and for the last decade still a substantially private institution in control, but public in its benefits. OUR SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA now and has been for several years, among the three of four finest in America, as fine almost as any in the world, for it is recognized that American orchestras now surpass the best in Europe. The New York Philharmonic-Symphony, the Philadelphia, and, perhaps the Chicago Orchestra are in a class with it. Each of these has its supporters for the title of "greatest." But there are even critics in New York who rank the Boston orchestra as the most notable.

THIS SPRING the New York orchestra toured Europe for the first time, under the leadership of Toscanini, and it was met with almost universal effusions of extraordinary praise. It was assumed by most of the writers—encouraged, no doubt, by a different press-agent—that this was the outstanding American orchestra. Our own judgment is that whichever one of the trio (or quartet) went first was bound to receive such recognition.

• • •

MR. KOUSSEVITZY, brilliant conductor, has for several years nourished a hope to take the Boston orchestra abroad, and no doubt he was keenly disappointed that he could not go first. That is human and natural. None the less, when, having heard Toscanini and the Philharmonic in London, he was interviewed by a London newspaperman, he was generous and sincere in his praise of conductor and orchestra. At the same time he expressed continued eagerness to bring his own orchestra to Europe, and confidence in his ability to do so.

"Arrangements are not yet complete," he said in effect, "but we'll be here next year."

Anyone who knows Mr. Koussevitzky's determination will realize that his reiterated expressions will eventually bear fruit. Anything he wants badly enough he is likely to get, and by all evidence he wants very much to have his orchestra play in Europe.

THERE IS ANOTHER reason why it will very likely be next summer. The coming season will be the fiftieth of the orchestra's existence. Although no definite plans have been announced it is well known that preparations have been going on for a long time to make this jubilee year a big one for the orchestra and its public. Mr. Koussevitzky himself, when we talked to him before he sailed for Europe, alluded to something "very big."

• • •

IN ALL LIKELIHOOD it will be the crowning season of glory during Mr Koussevitsky's stay here, bigger than even the Beethoven or Brahms festival seasons. What more natural then, than that this imaginative Russian, with his flare for color, should top it all off with a triumphant procession into the capitals of Europe, one of the shades of Beethoven and Mendelssohn, of Liszt and Wagner, may hear music as we hear it weekly in the Athens of America?

SEND TICKETS BY PIGEONS

To carry its message of hospitality the Capitol Theater, in Allston, is using carrier pigeons to bear guest tickets to Brighton and Allston boys now doing their tour of duty at Camp Devens.

Manager Corkery is using 20 pigeons, sent at intervals with the ticket. The birds have been trained by Frank Coughlin of the Roslindale Homing Club.

"Lightnin'"

Louise Dresser has been assigned by Fox as leading woman opposite Will Rogers in "Lightnin'." The only other member of the cast definitely set so far is J. M. Kerrigan.

PARADE VIEWS METROTONE FEATURE

Boston's great tercentenary celebration held last week on the Boston Common is given the feature spot in this week's issue of Hearst Metrotone News, now being shown at Loew's State.

Ex-President Calvin Coolidge in jovial mood, Governor Allen and Mayor Curley head the group of notables gathered on the reviewing stand. Sections of the monster parade are shown, including the Black Watch Patrol, the famous Kiltie squad.

The British ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay, in clear, well couched terms, expresses the good will of the British people to their American cousins.

The young folks will find interest in the latest ballroom dance from Cuba, as illustrated in smooth style by Ramon and Rosita. Other items include several scenes of the American yachts in competition to decide the cup defender. International bike champions starting cross-country race; Swiss yodellers entertaining the Parisian public and some thrilling pictures of the army airmen in action.

VAUDEVILLE POPULARITY SUSTAINED

Signs of the times point to the fact that in spite of the popularity of the talking, singing and dancing films, the show-going public insists upon stage shows. The sustained popularity of straight vaudeville at the RKO theaters is a daily demonstration of this condition. From London comes word that now, for the first time, music hall programs patterned after the American mixed shows of sound pictures and vaudeville, have for the first time invaded aristocratic West End.

The RKO theaters playing vaudeville, like the Keith-Albee in Boston, find the stage presentations have an appeal to old and young alike. With the exception of the occasional short subject and cartoon many persons prefer the living artist. In this regard, vaudeville has always held the affection of many playgoers. It presents variety of entertainment: no two acts on a well balanced bill are alike, and talent from all parts of the world can be shown on one bill with excerpts from everything from musical comedy to the circus. Many observers predict a glorious renaissance of vaudeville in this coming season and apparently London and other European capitals are looking for a similar revival abroad.

"Lady Surrenders"

French-Canadians Quit New England

Nashua, N. H., July 23—A sizable exodus of French-Canadians from New England industrial centers to agricultural sections of Quebec is indicated by reports.

According to the A. S. Deschenes, in charge of the New England office of a Quebec province agency in this city, during the past six months between 500 and 600 families, totaling about 1800 persons, have departed from New England to take up farm lands in the province Quebec.

The claim of a "back to Canada" movement is supported by the Canadian Government. Information in Nashua at Montebello.

Guy Gaudet, assistant director of the latter bureau, said tonight that 500 families and 2500 persons are, in his opinion, a conservative estimate of the number of departures since the first of the current year.

Compact Coolness in Sport Apparel

—By ANN ARDEN—

THERE SHOULD be nothing to hamper the modern woman [illegible] pursuing her sport. Wide masculine [illegible] Certainly not only are her sport togs the last word in comfort and compactness, but they have been reduced to the trimmest imaginable proportions.

LIGHTNESS [illegible] and practicability are in the [illegible] summer sportswear. Designers have not been content with merely offering feminine sportswomen feminine duplicates of masculine shirts and shorts; they have also tried to work out combination garments that include several important features in one.

WHETHER OR NOT you remember the shirt waist of the gay nineties with its flaring shoulders and wasp waist, you will find the skirt and tucked-in blouse costume of today a vast improvement over the earlier version.

THE THREE PIECE tennis costume pictured of Sudanette, a two-piece dress and matching shorts; it is in a soft pink shade, and gives definite evidence of the lovely color cottons have achieved this season.

THE SKIRT is wrap-around with large patch pocket at right side front. The tucked-in [illegible] blouse has its collar edge finished in pointed scallop, and buttons down center front with pink bone buttons. Doffing the skirt one is ready for an active game of tennis, in the well-tailored shorts. The hat is of pink piqué with adjustable brim and the necklace of graduated piqué beads.

MADAME SCHIAPARELLI, the well-known exponent of characterful sports clothes, has made a very smart tennis frock of white linen, which has pockets, little cap sleeves, almost kimono in design) and a chemisier front of wool lace or wool mesh. This makes a nice contrast of both fabric and color. The front is made of natural color wool which is slightly creamy white in tone.

THIS IS one of the best looking and most popular tennis frocks that have crossed the Atlantic. With this dress a little turban of the same wool as used in the frock is very chic. This is softly draped and fits the head snugly—taking the place of the old tricolor turban made famous by Agnes a few seasons back. Brown and white sports shoes or espadrilles are worn with this.

Raquel Joins in Fight at Montmartre Club as Bertie Slaps Prince

CHAPTER 48

"Tony" Johnson's night club was no different from the others Raquel had visited in Montmartre — except that it was more so. Things zoomed along at a faster tempo. It was more feverish.

The small dance floor had been encroached on by the service department until only a tiny square remained free of tables. In this square men and women from all strata of life in every clime danced without seeming to move out of their tracks.

Darting in and out among them was Tony" himself, her back and shoulders a gleaming sheen of copper under the dim lights. Her bodice, if so slight an attempt at the conventions could be dignified with that term, was of gold sequins. Her full tulle skirt of a ballet dancer was the exact bronze shade of her skin. Her black hair was parted, plastered to her head, and brought out over her cheeks in long "hooks" after the style of a bold Carmen.

"In a minute, she'll hop up on a chandelier and begin tossing encanails," Greta predicted.

Another table was whisked out from somewhere and placed on the already cramped floor. Bertie and Ginger were known in Tony's

"Will anything happen to them?" Coolly.

"Will anything happen" It's already happened! Do you know who that blonde is? The one Bertie opened fire on? Nobody but the Prince de Rochelle. The biggest gun in Paris."

"I don't care if he is the President of France," said Raquel. "He deserved it."

"And that dame with him. She was probably the Duchess of Kahlack. You gave her rough treatment, dearie."

"I should have given worse"

"Listen who says that. A little old cold cucumber broadcasting. Maybe you're right, but we haven't heard the last of it. If this doesn't get into the papers, I'm no judge of hot news."

"What can no longer be cured, must be endured," said Raquel, "so stop talking. It is done. We must make the best of it.

Bertie did come, just when Greta and Raquel were on the point of giving him up with Ginger puffing in his wake.

Both men belittled the encounter. They were pleased to treat the affair lightly, aside from an apology that it had occurred at all.

Yet Raquel felt sure that Ginger's good humor was forced. That underneath it was a current of unrest.

"Listen, dearie," Greta said when they were nearing Raquel's hotel. "We got an idea. You stay with me. Unless they've set a guard at every door of the Ritz, they'll never know what time we checked in."

"But what will Alphonse think?" asked Raquel. "He'll surely learn from Lola, that money meant, that I was away all night. However, if you think it's best——"

"Sure, it's best. We might as well give Nancy a night of it. I'll bet she's fit to be tied right now. What a total loss she is as a detective. With a nose like hers, she ought to be an inspector."

"Raquel," Bertie said, as he left her with Greta, "if you'll let me take you to the opera, I'll promise not to pick on a single prince." His voice was pleading.

"Oh, but you must," Raquel said, gravely, "if he's a boor."

Her hand lingered in his, returned a warm pressure His free hand rumpled his fair hair when it swept back from his sunburned brow. He had not stopped to retrieve his hat in the night-club of "Tony" Johnson

For an hour after they were in her room Greta gabbled. Then she fell into a deep, if troubled, slumber

Raquel did not sleep. When the faint flush of reluctant dawn turned into the thin gold light of day, she rang a bell and sent for the morning papers.

Raquel Awake
Reads the Papers

"All that are printed in English," she ordered.

The first paper she opened taxed her preparedness She had known all along it would carry an account of the affair in Montmartre. But she had not reckoned this:

"PRINCE TO CHALLENGE POLO STAR.'

"Following brawl in Montmartre, young French noble declares he will avenge blow on field of honor.

"Prince Pierre de Rochelle soundly slapped by Robert (Bertie) Adams, the alleged affront to woman companion.

"'Tony' Johnson's night club scene of trouble.

"Woman, said to be beautiful young Spanish visitor in Paris, escapes without identity being learned.

"Prince de Rochelle, with long dueling record, France's most sensational swordsman.

"Adams is expert polo player and horseman.

"Authorities will take steps to prevent meeting."

She saw the woman touch her bare shoulder half-lifted with a caress. She knew that the touch was Bertie's. Raquel leaped to ward. Her hand darted for her woman's wrist. She could feel the soft flesh where her nails dug into it. A cry of pain. The man dropped the glass.

"Quick," she heard Ginger saying close to her ear. "This way." Greta had her hand, was dragging her through the clamor that followed the first hush following the blow.

She was in a taxicab in a dark street, with Greta. The taxi was standing still.

"We'll wait here," Greta said.

"What for?" Raquel's voice was low, even.

"For Bertie and Ginger. You didn't think we were going to leave them flat in that howling mob, did you?"

What's in Fashion?

Double-Duty Costumes

Directed by AMOS PARRISH

NEW YORK July 23—Some of the well known Efficiency Experts you hear about must have had a hand in designing some of Summer's nicest fashions.

The Efficiency Expert's job, you know, is to find ways to save time and money. To get twice as much work out of the same number of machines.

And there are quite a few fashionable Summer costumes planned to do the work of two. You buy one. And use it for two purposes.

One of them is a three piece sports outfit. And how the younger crowd has hailed it with joy! A skirt, a matching blouse and matching shorts.

They wear the entire costume for any kind of sports . . . playing or watching.

For real energetic tennis, the shorts is taken off. You play in the blouse and shorts. Makes a fine beach costume, too.

For golf, lately . . . wear the skirt with other blouses and make an entirely new looking costume. You can get the idea . . . from the sketch at the right above.

A second double-duty costume is still in the sports class. And that's the jersey bathing suit with matching jacket.

How can a bathing suit be used for anything else? Easy . . . when you're fashionable. Not the whole suit, of course. But the jacket.

Since it's of jersey, there's no reason in the world why you can't use it as a sports jacket . . . just as lots of smart and economical people are doing.

Of course they have to plan their color ensemble. Make sure their bathing suit is a color that harmonizes with the rest of their wardrobe. Then the jacket just naturally goes with their sports dresses.

In the suit sketched, the jacket is a blouse. There are plenty of straight cardigans, too.

There's another jacket that has the efficiency idea, too. The short velveteen paletot (as the French call it).

It started its fashion life as an evening wrap. But it was too precious to put away and forget between times. So some smart person thought of wearing it in the daytime.

Now it's a jacket to be worn with an afternoon dress. And even with spectator sports costumes . . . to tennis matches and horse races—or where you go.

Which makes it a triple duty jacket!

Formal evening clothes that are used once in a while are rather a bugbear to the thrifty woman. But a formal evening costume that can quickly become an informal one . . . or a formal afternoon dress . . . is a joy.

And that's just what the fashion Efficiency Expert has done for you this year.

Made a formal evening dress . . . of lace, or net or chiffon . . . and added a jacket that makes it informal when you want it so. Great idea!

How to Keep Well -:- By Dr. Royal S. Copeland

Make Vacation Time of Rest

EVERY NOW and then during the Summer months, my thoughts turn to my vacationist. I think of the thousands who are now seeking pleasure bent, of those who seek rest and recuperation from the strenuous city life. I give thought to those who expect to build for health and strength and vitality of the rest of the year. When you are planning for a vacation be sure you select a sanitary place. Whether it be a Summer hotel, a boarding house, a camp or seashore place, it must be one that has a pure water supply, food and sewage.

If the children are going to a camp take particular care that the sanitary laws are observed to the letter. Investigate the camp before your child is sent there. Be sure it has the approval of the state and local health officers. Many a child has returned from camp life with typhoid germs lurking in the system, germs acquired from milk or water that has been contaminated.

I should like to say something about sports and athletics of children in camp. Of course all the best camps have carefully selected sort of sports. It must be remembered that boys and girls who have not been accustomed to them must be cautioned not to go too strenuously into sports. There must be a gradual hardening of the body before competitive sports are indulged in by children, or adults either. Have the family doctor look over your child before sending the youngster to camp.

Thousands of people are off on almost daily motoring and hiking expeditions. They have dangers to face. It has been found that persons are more liable to typhoid when they go camping places, places remote, where drinking water is taken from brook and spring, than those who go to Summer hotels and boarding houses. Much trouble is saved by boiling drinking water. One bottle of drinking water from unknown sources is worth a thousand bottles of it if you are to visit a spot known to be safe. Don't take any chances on the water you drink.

It is scarcely necessary to urge plenty of physical exercise for the general vacationist. Rather it is better to remind him that too much or too strenuous exercise is unwise, particularly if he is not accustomed to it. Begin a gradual building up of the body muscles. Exercise in moderation. Do not attempt too long walks in the heat of the day.

Take a first-aid kit along on your vacation. Maybe you won't need it, but in case of accident it is a fine thing to have.

The seaside places are inviting millions of people. You can't go to the seashore without an island. There are things to be said for and against some visits to the water. Here I am not speaking of bathing, but you can't always stop them.

Don't stay in the hot sun all day, for you may have to pay the penalty with sunburned skin and much misery. You can have too much of any good thing. Begin the tanning process gradually. Confine the exposure to the sun's rays gently and gradually.

Those who make of vacation a time of right living, rest and recuperation return in the autumn in new vigor and health. In the early fall the vacated towns and city streets are a more alive, reanimated, healthy lot of individuals than they have been for months. It is distinctly worth while to contrive to spend a vacation wisely and well.

Heart and Home

Live Your Own Life

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl 21 years of age and am not content with one to go out with the same sex. I am not such a bad looking girl, if we even mention the boys she gives us a howling out that would last a life time. When I say we, I mean my sister, and she is 22. She has a boy to marry him. But my mother says she will never give her consent. Please advise me.

THE LONESOME DUO.

Dear Lonesome Duo: You are old enough to live your own life and your own rights. The fact that mother's outlook has evidently been embittered by unfortunate experience, but some mothers take her own fling at happiness, and you might as well make a stand now as later.

She Dreads Poverty

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

We have always been very poor and have had all kinds of hardships. Now I am 19 and engaged to a man whom I love but who can scarcely make enough money to support himself and me in two small rooms. I am so tired of poverty! Shall I marry and keep right on being poor? MARY.

Dear Mary—Your hard life has made you somewhat pessimistic, I hasn't it, my dear girl? Don't on any account resign yourself to a continuation of poverty and low spirit—it is so unnecessary. If you are in love with your betrothed, which I somewhat doubt, a little, marry him, but only if you are willing to double the family income by taking a job yourself.

He Blushes at 28

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Every time I talk to a girl I blush, and also when a fellow is kidding me I just can't seem to control it. I am 28 now and still I blush. Please help me.

REVEIK.

Dear Revere — You are probably a very fine skin that easily reflects your feelings. Try to get as much outdoor life as possible and the next time you go to a doctor ask him about the exercise you should do and not take. As to blushing, let me remind you of the old French count lady who said: "They teach you to dance, O could they teach us to blush, did it cost us a guinea a blow."

Miss Fairfax will be pleased to answer readers' questions regarding love problems which may be troubling them. Write on one side of the paper only.

Favorite Blueberry With Us in Many Forms

From Martha Lee's Wednesday Morning Broadcast Over WHDH by the Boston Evening American.

FINDING IN the market large, luscious blueberries covered with a faint silvery sheen recalls days of long ago when the reveille of "blueberries are ripe" was the signal for the whole family to gather baskets, buckets, pails and bowls and make a day of it in the woods to garner in the fruit of the glade.

Martha Lee

If you're a New Englander and spent your youth either on the Cape or in the woodlands these scenes are familiar to you, and you will have a happy memory. Fine, big juicy ones, guaranteed to stain lips and teeth to an indigo shade. If your will is strong you will hold out for a time, only to "give in" in the end when a large pie filled to the brim with the luscious berries makes its appearance.

For those who know better than to go again nature, I've prepared a number of delicious blueberry recipes and pass them on to you here with:

BLUEBERRY PIE

2-3 cup white vegetable shortening

1 cup flour.

½ tsp. salt.

Only cold water to make firm dough.

Cut shortening into flour; add as little water as possible.

Chill in ice box one hour; roll out on board and line pie pans. Fill the crust with berries, picked over and washed; rolled in flour. Add sugar as desired, and cover with top. Bake in oven 10 minutes at 400 F., then at 350, until crust is brown and crisp. (Yum, yum!)

BLUEBERRY DUMPLINGS

4 cups flour.
4 tsp. baking powder,
½ tsp. salt,
1 scant cup milk or water.
1½ cups berries.

Mix the dry ingredients, stir in the milk or water gradually and then the berries, stirring gently so as not to break or bruise them. Drop quickly by the spoonful into boiling water; or in making stews, let them rest on the meat and potatoes. Cover closely to keep in the steam and cook just 10 minutes without lifting the cover. Serve at once. If used as a dessert, serve with a vanilla sauce thusly

VANILLA SAUCE

1 tbsp. butter.
2 tbsp. flour.
2 cups boiling water.
½ cup sugar.
1 tsp. vanilla.

Melt the butter, add flour and stir until it bubbles; add the boiling water and sugar. Boil until smooth and thoroughly cooked. Add flavoring, strain and serve hot.

BLUEBERRY KUCHEN

1 qt. blueberries
¾ cup sugar.
2 tbsp. lemon juice.
3 tbsp. cream.
Yolk of egg
Cinnamon.

Wash and pick over berries, line pie plate with a thin layer of cooky dough, sprinkle with bread crumbs. Add the berries, sprinkle with sugar, not too much, and cinnamon, lemon juice or vinegar, and over all the yolk of an egg beaten with cream. If unripe grapes or currants can be obtained, strew also on a layer of lemon juice. Place in hot oven and bake until the bottom is well browned.

COOKIE DOUGH

1 tbsp. butter.
1 cup flour
½ tsp. baking powder.
¾ cup sugar.
1 egg

Mix dry ingredients. Work in butter with the fingertips; add egg, mix well. Sprinkle flour on board and roll ¼ inch thick. This makes enough dough for a large oblong pan; used for apple, cheese, blueberry or any fresh fruit open pie.

This is a long story today, and I have other blueberry recipes that there is no room for here, but if you will drop me a line requesting same I will send them along to you with my blessing.

Faithfully yours,

Martha Lee

Some Points on Etiquette

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Corsage for Widow-Bride

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Is it proper for a widow to have a bouquet of flowers when getting married in church? If so, what kind? M. L. J.

It is better form for her to wear a corsage rather than a bouquet as more appropriate. For instance, a shoulder bouquet of one or two orchids or lilies of the valley gardenias, or a few sprays

Informal Type of Invitation

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When telephoning guests for a wedding reception how much time should one allow before sending the invitation and reception? MRS. J.

Such a form of invitation would be entirely inappropriate for gathering, and therefore the invitation would probably not be given until about a week before the date set for the ceremony. Even ten days might be enough

A Gracious Bow the Dignified Greeting

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1—After not seeing some lady friends for a long time do not nod or shout excitedly between passing vehicles, if you happen to meet them it is petty to make a show of the pleasure you feel. Should the girl go over to the new friends and say "Hello"?

2—Would it be proper to send a graduation card to a young man after not seeing him for about two years, because of the above reason? M. A. S.

1—No, it would be highly unrefined for the girl to go over to where the man is and greet him. She may, if she wishes, bow graciously to him, but she would show extremely poor taste if she goes toward where he is standing. Under these circumstances the man should content himself by greeting her, if she had already bowed to him.

2—Yes, if the girl wishes to, especially since apparently the misunderstanding was not the fault of either of them.

Stepdaughters of War -:- By Helen Zenna Smith

CHAPTER 36

"Air raid!"

I collect my blankets and mattress methodically as usual and don my coat and hat and muffler. It is the ninth raid in succession since the moon came this month.

"Match!"

We stagger forth, stumbling and gagging with our cumbersome loads. It is not a long distance, but Army biscuit mattresses are no joke to carry for any length of time. We arrive gasping. There is no sign of the enemy planes as yet—the warning has just been given. Excellent time. We settle ourselves comfortably. I find a cozy corner, and Cheery, Misery and Rimley drape themselves comfortably round me. They like being near me during raids because I am "always the same."

Misery immediately starts a frenzied assault on the bedspread while Cheery and Rimley, sotto voce, in case a forewoman hears, begin to chuckle her about Fred. She ignores this. To their chagrin she is not to be drawn tonight.

The enemy planes have come within earshot now. Boom, boom—like a giant hive of giant bees.

"Bigger fleet than ever tonight."

Now the picnic has started. The bombs are falling thick and fast, each one nearer. Worse tonight than they have ever been we whisper. The whisper the same thing every night.

There is a terrific explosion, startling in its unexpectedness, like a frightful peal of thunder, followed by a rain of shots. We know what that is. The anti-aircraft guns aimed from the air at some target after the bomb has soared and We sit up dazedly, leave our recumbent form the shock when there is another ear-splitting explosion—nearer. More machine gun fire follows it.

Pinsup Crash! Through the half-light our eyes seek one another, startled. We listen. Four engines. We can count them distinctly. Four bombers flying low over our trench. Someone asks what our own planes are doing to let the raiders through like this, dropping their bombs like rain, deafening us until our heads are pounding and our ear drums throbbing.

Pinsup, Pinsup, Pinsup, Boom! Crash!

The end of the trench suddenly collapse with a roar. There is a flash of flame outside. The sandbags cave in slowly as though coming to a mighty decision before falling. The trench Worse tonight than they have ever been we whisper. The whisper the same thing every night.

Five feet to the left and the airman would have scored a direct hit. One foot nearer—a bit—bleeding. The others begin to panic and huddle together at the other end.

The plane comes down in a swoop lower lower—terrific warning We run for the bombs hanging below the wings Lower, lower—another bomb is unleashed. It falls in the middle of the trench. There is a mighty explosion, a flash of flame a earsplitting percussion that knocks me flat on the ground. Something falls on me. I lose consciousness. When I come to girls are screaming all round me —the air is filled with the groans of the dying. Something heavy is lying across my legs. With difficulty I remove it. It is a sandbag. I stand up.

The roll is called. The casualties are heavy. Ten dead, two missing, twenty-four injured. The ambulances are coming. The dead are lying neatly in a row. The wounded lie beside them. Soldiers are trying to dress their wounds. Blimey is unconscious from loss of blood. Her burberry will never be any use again. Misery and Cheery lie at my feet. Misery is clasping her unfinished crochet bedspread. Cheery looks curiously naked without her right hand. The stump of her arm is still shielding her face.

A soldier comes over to where I am sitting on the side of the trench.

"Well, you wasn't meant to die tonight," he says.

I turn my head in his direction and begin to laugh softly. He is alarmed.

"Can't get you a drink, can I? You're not hysterical nor nothing?"

I tell him no. I have never felt less hysterical in my life.

NEWS OF Trends of the Day MAJOR New York List MARKETS

MANY STOCKS ARE BID UP IN WALL ST.

New York, July 23—Having, in effect, publicly committed themselves to advancing prices, the bull forces applied strong-arm methods to the stock market today.

A minority list of important stocks was bid up 4 points or more, and timid shorts hurried to cover at costly levels. There was little inclination on the part of the general public, however, to rush into the market. Commission houses reported only a moderate pick up in business.

The closing was strong, with good advances recorded over much of the list. Final prices in most cases were at or close to the day's best.

MEEHAN WITH BULLS

A widely advertised statement by M. J. Meehan & Co., saying that it regarded present levels as offering excellent opportunities to prudent investors, was generally regarded in Wall St. as a public avowal of the bull cause by the so-called "Meehan group" of market operators, who are regarded in brokerage circles as important engineers in the present market.

While speculative sentiment generally has become rather cautious over the more distant future, there is a feeling that the success of the present movement will depend largely upon the extent of the seasonal upturn in business activity as fall approaches, and the prudent public participation which can be attracted.

Commission houses find no such inclination on the part of the public to rush into the market as there has been during recent years, for too many optimistic forecasts and bull campaigns have failed.

A current survey points out that the stocks of several leading companies of a decade ago would now show sharp losses if held since that time.

The day's business news still reflected little but seasonal trends. The weekly steel trade reviews were more optimistic, but iron age still placed steel rail operations unchanged at 56 per cent of capacity, against 93 per cent a year ago, and 73 per cent two years ago.

OIL NEWS GOOD.

Freight car loadings as reported for the latest week showed further seasonal declines, and continued at the lowest level in recent years. The weekly petroleum statistics, however, distinctly were favorable, showing further substantial reductions in refiners stocks and crude production.

Earnings statements coming to hand continue to show a few decidedly encouraging exceptions to the downward tendency.

The bull movement attracted considerable profit taking, and prices wavered considerably at times. For a time during the morning and again in the afternoon, the appearance of a point or so from the highest were common.

Strenuous operations for the advance in such pool favorites as Standard Oil of New Jersey and Radio Corp. appeared to meet with some opposition, for advances of only a point or less were achieved. General Motors was pushed up substantially more than a point, a fair move for that stock.

Shares making extreme gains of about 4 into the last hour included U. S. Steel, American Telephone, American Can, Vanadium and U. S. Pont. Radio, General Electric, and Electric Auto Lite gained 2 or so. High flyers were Eastman Kodak, Allied Chemical, Columbian Carbon, and Peoples Gas, up 5 to 10.

The ticket added to its gains in the late trading, and leading shares showed net advances of two to eight points.

There was a vigorous movement in General Motors, which extended its rise to a couple of points, accompanied by increasing strength in Radio, Westinghouse Electric, American Can and others, although profit-taking subsequently reduced some of the extreme gains. The close was strong.

BOND MARKET SLACKENS

New York, July 23—The listed bond market suffered from inertia today as the quietness which has prevailed this week was emphasized by further slackening in activity.

Price movements of insignificant proportions took place in the domestic group, and the best activity was in a few popular issues. The stock privilege bonds which as usual responded to the strength of equity issues for which they are exchangeable.

Convertibles made the best showing among the issues dealt in on the New York Stock Exchange, with some profiting to the extent of a point.

The strong fundamental position of the market was further enhanced by a further easing in the money rates for 30 days being cut 2% of 1 per cent to 2¾ by some dealers, while call money renewed at 3 per cent.

While interest in railroad mortgage issues ebbed and some business developed in good demand existed for convertible issues of several carriers, and Allegheny & Western 4½s, Richmond & Ohio 4½s, Chicago & Northwestern 4½s moved forward.

Others in the stock privilege group were buoyed by the strong tone of stocks, American Natural Gas 6½s, with warrants rose more than a point after showing weakness yesterday. General Theatres 6s, International Telephone 4½s were marked up sharply.

Doubling for Love

what can you expect? I'm restless myself. Judy—" timidly—"mightn't we plan a little vacation trip? Just a tiny one?"

"Oh, mother! With insurance due and Hannibal's engine must be overhauled if we're going to drive as all. And the lonely place in the roof. Besides I do want to go to Columbia!"

Judy took off the spectacles, dabbed away a tear. Softly rounded little face—capricious brown tilted upward at the corner ends—deep gray eyes sweetly luminous. Lashes like a fringe of curling black lace shadowing her cheeks.

"You one ever sees her this way—do one but me!" rang like a cry in Peggy's heart. "No one knows how lovely she is—"

Aloud she said, "Of course we'll be sensible, lamb. What would become of us with only me to manage! Have more coffee—brace you against the spaldeens."

"What a brick you are, Mother! Some day I'll make it all up to you—"

Peggy watched the blue serge down the gravel path. All afternoon she kept thinking, "No nonsense about her . . . no nonsense about my girl . . . Ah poor lamb! If there were only a little—just the tiniest speck of nonsense about Judy—"

In Grade Room 2A the little teacher brought up a tired sigh, sent the spaldeens home, then followed them to the corridor, cleaned up and down, turned around and went back to work.

Standing with her back to the panels dignity fell from her like a hateful cloak. She crossed her arms at the back of her head, capered through a few dance steps, made a face at a picture of Ralph Waldo Emerson which hung on the wall.

Judith Archer was leading a double life!

BRONCHITIS

Mrs. Rosalia Conrad, 27 Howard Ave., Malden, writes: "I had suffered from bronchitis for a year. I had a cough, tightness in chest and could not breathing. I lost weight rapidly and was very weak. I lost 15 lbs. in one month and carried a temperature. My friends thought I would have to resign. Three doctors failed to help me. Pneumonia although one or the other had treated me. Then Walsh's doctor told me to try Dr. Walsh's method. In a few days I felt relief. Upon her recommendation I had my husband take one and he was equally successful in my case. When I went to Dr. Walsh I weighed 92 lbs. Now I weigh 103 lbs.—more than I ever weighed before. I eat well and sleep well. I consent to the publication of this testimonial in the hope of helping others who suffer as I did."

(Signed) Mrs. Rosalia Conrad.

The Pact Passed

Congratulations to England and Japan in Order

Monday afternoon, in Washington's extreme heat, the Senate ratified the Naval Treaty, a pact prepared by Japan and Great Britain, limiting the size of weapons on American cruisers to 6-inch guns, throwing 105-pound shells.

The ablest officers in our Navy demanded 8-inch guns, throwing shells weighing 260 pounds.

But the British decided otherwise, and "otherwise" it is.

Perhaps, next time, when the character of the American Navy is to be settled, it will be done in the United States, and, perhaps, England and Japan will come here to get instructions from us.

PERHAPS, but not PROBABLY.

Later on, possibly, when votes are counted, at future elections, some men in the Senate will wish they had voted to let the United States make its own plans for national defense.

At present, congratulations to Japan and England are in order. They know our government, and how to run it.

A Worthy Charity

Sanitarium Aids Crippled Children

On Lowell Island at the entrance to Marblehead Harbor a work of tenderness and mercy enters upon its forty-fifth year.

It is the scene of the Children's Island Sanitarium which each Summer administers to 100 children of Boston and vicinity who are afflicted with tubercular joints, the post effects of infantile paralysis and the illnesses resulting from malnutrition.

There the crippled and paralyzed children derive the benefits of the sun and salt water treatments and of the medical attention which can possibly restore them to good health or can at least curtail the handicaps they suffer. These children derive tremendous psychological benefits, too. They learn to mix with their physical superiors on terms of relative equality and to approach their adult life more firmly in the confidence that it is not the physical impediment that is the barrier to success.

This fine work has been sustained by its immediate sponsors and by a circle of contributors which should be widened. The memory of Him who said, "Suffer little children to come unto Me, and forbid them not," should appeal to generous hearts that this sphere of kindly activity may be enlarged.

More Than One Issue

Prohibitionists Fight Andrew

Congressman A. Piatt Andrew of Essex County delivered what was probably the most thoughtful arraignment of prohibition which has fallen from the lips of any of our distinguished citizens. And now the prohibition forces are scurrying through his district seeking to produce some candidate who possibly could defeat him for re-election.

Mr. Andrew's remarkable record in the French and American armies, his fine career as Assistant Treasurer of the United States and his long service in Congress are to be overlooked.

These people seem to have no interest in any of the other problems which press this country. Unemployment, the tariff, even the loss of American sovereignty in foreign diplomatic adventures cannot seem to deflect them from their purpose to punish with defeat any public official who dares to transgress their viewpoint on this single issue. It is such inflexibility which supports the charge of fanaticism.

Walsh For America

Senator Votes "No" on Naval Treaty

The people of Massachusetts should today be very proud of Senator David I. Walsh for his vote against the London arms pact.

It were easier for him to have gone along with the submissive majority. But his fine sense of Americanism, which the late Senator Lodge so fulsomely praised, caused him to take the more difficult course of duty with the little band of patriots who, time will prove, captured the admiration and gratitude of the American people.

Senator Walsh saw with unerring judgment what so many others should have seen, namely, that the Washington pact destroyed America's superiority at sea and the London pact consummated that betrayal by actually making the country inferior in naval defenses.

The Democrats and Republicans alike who now seek the honor of becoming his colleague from Massachusetts in the United States Senate can make themselves no more attractive to the voters of this State than by emulating Senator Walsh's firmly patriotic attitude on these matters of foreign policy which threaten the future security of their country.

He Saved the Boy

Fire Driver Lives Up to Tradition

An obscure but precious nugget from the day's news reads as follows:

"To avoid a boy who had darted across the street, Driver Burke of Engine 53, at Forest Hills, swerved his engine to the curb and crashed into a hydrant at the corner of Washington and Green sts."

It would seem that our callous disregard of the other fellow's life, as typified by organized banditry or the auto death wave, for example, has not entirely engulfed us; and that the traditional bravery of the fireman is not just a memory of the past.

McIntyre Abroad

By O. O. McINTYRE

LONDON, JULY 23—Most wanderers in London make a bee line for the heart of green England—the highly publicized countryside with its beautiful Georgian estates and country taverns. I like to journey afoot in the deepening dusk through the wretched squalor of the glowering East India Docks road.

Through Poplar, Stepney and Limehouse—the world of seafaring men glorified by Jacobs and the dank causeways glorified by Thomas Burke. There, especially in that part of Limehouse skirting the river, one finds a sort of underworld life rarely found in any other part of the world.

The street lamps gleam an indigo blue faintly and many paned windows of the motley array of shops are covered with dust. Chinese stand dully and unwinking in doorways. There is the musty odor of ale and the scraping of cheap gramophones. Everybody seems undernourished and life forms a thick green scum.

My wife and I were told by a hotel porter we should have a guide—it was dangerous—but somehow I have never feared the slums although otherwise timid. We had tea and hot muffins, no British and unexpected, in Limehouse Court, a queer little chit of a street cluttered with lodging houses, ale and grocers' shops.

Poverty in Limehouse is accepted grimly but not with resentment. The courtesy of Limehouse to me is expressed in that subaqueous roadway, known as Blackwell Tunnell. A notice board asks drivers entering it to walk their horses. A notice at the other end anticipates obedience with: "Thank you, driver!"

The struggle for life here is always incessantly cruel and sometimes it becomes stealthy. It would be natural if inquisitiveness were regarded as impertinence, but it never is. The children are sensitive and stop playing at the approach of strangers but they do not jeer or shout as they do in New York's Ghetto.

The cockney has a sullen exterior, but he retains a good humor under all conditions. The slyest wit England produces is out of the mouths of cockneys in Limehouse alone he remains unchanged. His flat bowler derby, amusing swagger and many pearl buttoned short coat are still his insignia—the true "limey."

Returning to London late we drove through Houndsditch—a hangout for cab drivers. The pubs were lined with those waiting for the afternoon theater rush. The somewhat bonneted women were haranguing their Arries and Alfs. Everybody was sipping ale and dipping heavily into the bar-lunch of the famous cockle, whelk, jellied eel and oyster patties. It was a jubilant din and typically London. I loved it.

The stones and bricks of Mayfair [illegible] a royal eloquence. In almost every large American city there is now an exclusive social and dancing club called "The Mayfair." The aristocratic Park avenue is called Manhattan's Mayfair. London's Mayfair proper takes its name from the fair held there every May and is a lily growing out of the bog. It was once as notorious as Whitechapel a place for more convenient than holy matrimony. Fortunates who live in Mayfair usually have homes in the country or Scotland and it seemed desolate this morning. Mayfair's best known street is Curzon. Its dignified [illegible] has recently been augmented by one of London's newest [illegible] temples—the Church of Christ, Scientist.

It just occurs to me that an excellent writing man really discovered Mayfair for America. We heard little of this powdered area until Michael Arlen made it fashionable. Arlen, incidentally, has settled down to a life of simple domesticity in Paris.

* * *

A reliable spy tells me—and I'm glad I'll be clear of merrie England before it is printed—that the Prince of Wales' tailor is actually an Italian in Rome. The same tailor, who demands cash no matter who the customer, also fashions spruce habiliments for Douglas Fairbanks.

* * *

My wife went to Covent Garden this evening to listen to a mess of royal opera. I stayed home to count my money. And it's about time!

H. G. Wells Writes

ON "THE SCIENCE OF LIFE"

JAVA IS smaller than England, but, though almost entirely agricultural, has more people in it.

H. G. Wells

The feeding of these multiplying millions is becoming a serious problem. Mendel in his monastery garden; Hertwig and Boveri and the other cytologists straining their eyes down their microscopes to look at chromosomes; Morgan in his "fly-room" at Columbia—who could imagine that their work would so soon, and on such a grand scale, help to solve Java's problems?

Section 3. Is Inbreeding Evil?

Inbreeding has been looked upon with suspicion by many men of many races.

There may be religious taboos upon its practice among human beings, such as are evidenced in the Tables of Consanguinity to be seen on the walls of our churches, or there may be rational (or at least rationalized) objections urged against it, as in the widespread opposition to cousin marriages on the ground that they will produce defective children or the reluctance of many animal breeders to risk degeneration of their stock by close inbreeding.

Now, it is perfectly true that in general if an animal or plant stock is consistently inbred (for example, by means of brother-to-sister matings) its vigor, its size, its fertility and its economic worth will slowly fall off. But this is not by any means a universal law.

There are plenty of cases where inbreeding is not harmful in the least.

Many breeds of domesticated animals and plants are very closely inbred and show no evident degeneration. This is true, for example, of the St. Bernard dog, of Jersey and Guernsey cattle and, indeed, of many breeds of cattle, horses, sheep and dogs.

Pigs, on the other hand, are not usually so closely inbred and they "degenerate" much more readily on inbreeding. In nature there are many species which as a rule, and even invariably, fertilize themselves.

Among plants such familiar forms as beans, wheat and tobacco may be cited; among animals certain parasites such as Sacculina and tapeworms — which, in spite of their ethical level, are very efficient parasites!

A classical example of actual improvement of a stock by inbreeding is the experiments of Miss King, at the Wistar Institute, Philadelphia.

(To be continued tomorrow.)

Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Love Isn't Blind, but It Dons Blinders

THEY SAY that love is blind. I doubt it.

Lovers are my specialty. I get 'em in car load lots. But I have yet to meet a really blind one. I have, however, met thousands who deliberately donned blinders in order to kid themselves along.

Elsie Robinson

Take Muriel Muriel's a fine person. Dignified, intelligent, good - natured, [illegible]-worthy. Has been a buyer in one of our big book departments for the last six years, which [illegible] she has been engaged to Dan Collins.

And for five of those years

Dan's handsome, charming—but just about as reliable as a cockroach. Love Muriel? Sure. And some day when he gets around to it, he expects to marry her. But in the meantime, he should worry whether he keeps his dates with her or returns the money he borrowed from her last week.

And so the anxious, humiliated years drag on for Muriel. Doesn't she see the futility of it all? Is her love for Dan blind? Not a bit of it! She knows perfectly well what Dan is—every detail of his character. But she won't admit that he's hopeless.

Go, if she does, she must lose the precious and precarious adventure of being Dan's sweetheart. And that's more than an adventure to Muriel. It's an addiction—an addiction she calls love. So—to protect her addiction, she turns her face stubbornly from reality and says that Dan will be different after they're married—Love will change him.

Gene's another. Gene's engaged, too, to as pretty a little piece of fluff as you'd want to meet. As a bridge prize she'd be a wow—but as a wife she'll be the world's worst pain in the neck. Frivolous, flirty, lazy, dishonest, extravagant—you wouldn't even keep a pup around that had a character like that.

And the queer part of it is that serious, steady Gene knows about her. He rather prides himself on his knowledge of human nature and he wouldn't dream of tying up with a partner like that in business. Yet he kids himself that everything will be all right after they're married.

Why is divorce? That's why.

It's the heavy price of kidding. Love doesn't fool us. We fooled ourselves—deliberately, stubbornly fooled ourselves because we wanted something. We knew it wasn't worth wanting. We knew it violated every cherished standard.

And our common sense yelled itself blue in the face, warning us to lay off. But we wouldn't lay off. For all this time there was this tugging, teasing, tantalizing attraction we call love.

Actually it wasn't love at all. It was only desire. But never was it the desire of the MIND for always the mind knew and feared the danger ahead. But we wouldn't listen to the mind's warning. So we went stubbornly, drunkenly ahead—

And then came the inevitable day when we said—"We never were meant for each other. I knew it all along, but somehow I couldn't believe it. I thought if we loved each other enough everything would turn out all right—"

Love isn't blind. But it tragically often puts on blinders.
